New London Sisters Killed As Speeding Train Smashes Car

Witness Fails In Attempt To Avert Tragedy

Girls Fail To Hear Warning Blast From Following Car, Drive Onto Tracks In Path of Special Train Carrying Students Back To College.

A speeding Big Four special passenger train carrying Ohio State university students back to school snuffed out the lives of two New London sisters, both students, at an unprotected grade crossing east of New London yesterday afternoon.

The tragedy, which stunned the New London community where the girls were widely known, was the only major traffic mishap reported in northcentral Ohio. Six other persons died in Ohio accidents, while Richland county had only one minor mishap in which no one was injured.

Miss Janet Crippen, 19, Cleveland art school student, was killed instantly in the New London tragedy. Her sister, Margaret, 18, riding with her in the family car, was fatally injured and died 15 minutes later in the New London hospital.

Walter Smith of New London, who was driving a car directly behind the girls' auto, said he realized they did not see the approaching train and sounded his horn to warn them.

They were unable to stop, however, in time to avoid the speeding Cleveland-to-Columbus train which struck the car about the middle of the right side. The car, virtually demolished, was thrown free of the tracks, as were the bodies. The train was held up several minutes after the crash.

The crash occurred about 3 p. m. at the Dan White crossing on a secondary road one and a half miles east of New London. The girls were driving north and it was believed Janet was returning to school in Cleveland after spending the Thanksgiving holiday at home. Margaret was a senior in the New London high school.

Double funeral services will be conducted for the sisters, but arrangements had not been completed at noon today.

The girls were daughters of Mr.

O.P.S. TO SPEND $125,000 HERE

Company to Extend Lines and Replace Equipment Here During Next Year.

Expenditure of about $125,000 in the Mansfield district during 1940 as part of a $3,000,000 construction program set up by the company for the state, was announced today by F. A. Chamberlin, vice president and division manager of the Ohio Public Service company.

Plans for the Mansfield area call for the construction of a new sub-station, extension of service lines, both urban and rural, and the rehabilitation of present equipment.

Chamberlin said extension of the company's service lines throughout the district would cost an estimated $68,000. Approximately $45,000 has been earmarked for city extensions and $20,000 for rural extensions, while another $3,000 will be spent on incidental work.

It is also estimated that another $50,000 will go towards rehabilitation of present equipment.

Of the latter amount, the company plans to spend $3,200 for construction of a sub-station on Trimble road, and $4,500 for the construction of a new 23,000 volt line to the Ohio Brass company, Chamberlin said.

As the major step in its statewide program, the company will install a 40,000 kilo-watt Westinghouse turbo-generator in the Morningside plant at Warren, along with increased sub-station capacity at Warren and Sandusky.

Kills 2, Wounds Wife Before Slaying Self

Jealousy-Maddened Husband, 30, Sneaks Into Estranged Wife's Home, Shoots At Four, Turns Gun On Himself.

(By Associated Press)

PHILADELPHIA—A young man crept into the home of his estranged wife early today, shot to death two women of her family, wounded his wife and her father, then took his own life.

Detective Peter McCormick said Stanley Krygier, 30, sent bullets into the hearts of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Josephine Nieckoski, 45, and her 17-year-old daughter, Florence, as they ran for a stairway to escape.

Wounded in the chest, Krygier's 22-year-old wife, Regina, sought to escape by plunging through her bedroom window to a porch roof. Krygier followed her, the detective said, and beat her with a hammer until she rolled to the pavement.

Her father, Felix Nieckoski, 57, was shot in the chest but fled the building by knotting together several sheets, tying them to a bedpost and lowering himself. He fell and broke his ankle.

McCormick said the young husband, a construction laborer, was maddened by jealousy of his wife; wanted her to establish a home away from her family.

Practiced Marksmanship.

The landlady at a rooming house where Krygier stayed since he left his wife at Eastertime told police he had practiced marksmanship in the cellar of the home every week.

Police found Krygier's wife and his father-in-law wounded on the pavement outside the house. The body of Krygier, with a bullet through his neck, lay inside the door with a pistol beside it. The bodies of Mrs. Nieckoski and her daughter, Florence, were on the second floor. The mother and her daughter had been shot through the heart.

Mrs. Krugier and her father were in critical condition.

RETURNS HOME

Farmer Reappears, Search of Woods Brought to End.

JOHNSVILLE — Grant Van Buren, a farmer residing three miles north of here, returned home last night after having been missing for three days while his family searched fields and woods for him, believing him a victim of a mad boar.

Van Buren said he had been in Columbus, it was learned. The family declined to comment further.

He left the farm about 4 p. m. Thursday, a short time before his son Harold, 28, encountered a mad boar and was severely gored in the leg by the enraged animal.

The elder Van Buren did not return, and after the son's encounter with the animal, it was feared that he had also met the animal and had been injured or killed.

Members of the family searched the surrounding territory all day Friday and Saturday without finding a trace of him. He returned to the home last night.

Harold Van Buren, who has been given anti-tetanus serum three times since the accident, was reported improved today.

BIGELOW SETS UP NEW DRIVE

Preacher Declares He'll Ask Approval of Same Pension Plan in 1940.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow, Cincinnati preacher and councilman, announced plans today for revival in 1940 of his $50-a-month pension plan which was rejected by the voters at the November 7 election by better than three to one ratio.

Initial arrangements were concluded at a meeting of the state committee of the Bigelow organization which determined upon the objective of amending the state constitution by an initiative proposal to guarantee $50 monthly income to persons over 60.

"We are going to ask the same amount of pensions, the same age limit and the same sources of revenue, but we are going to clarify definitions and explanations of the proposal," Bigelow said.

He disclosed that a committee of five lawyers has been selected to redraft his scheme to avoid criticism of it on numerous legal grounds that characterized the campaign against the pension and initiative amendments this year.

The pension program in 1939 provided for financing by a special two per cent tax on land of $20,000 valuation or more per acre plus a state income tax of one-fourth the federal tax.

Circulation of new petitions, according to Bigelow, will begin as soon as lawyers have redrafted the plan.

Bigelow said candidates for of-

Traffic Tags Fly Again, New Record's Near For November

The police department's "war" on traffic violators—has been given a shot in the arm.

This was evidenced today in the fact that traffic tags are flying again, despite Police Chief Meade K. Bates' assertion, after only 92 tags were issued in October, that motorists "aren't violating" the parking laws.

Records of the traffic bureau today showed that the issuance of summons for violation of the parking ordinances has increased more than 400 per cent during the past four weeks.

A total of 372 traffic tags have been issued so far this month as compared with the 92 issued during the entire month of October.

This is a gain of 280 during the month and if the current average of 15 tickets per day is maintained during the next four days, a total of 432 tags will have been issued in November.

This would mean that more violations have been spotted by police during November than any month since last February, when 449 violators were given summons at the outset of what Bates termed a "sustained law enforcement program."

SIGNS BRITISH ORDER TO SEIZE NAZI EXPORTS

King George Sets in Motion Britain's Reprisal Action for Mine Warfare.

MORE SHIPS GO DOWN

London Reports Capture of 2 German Freighters, Sub Destroys One of Them.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON — An order in council for the seizure of German exports was signed today by King George VI as an avowed reprisal for German mine-laying warfare.

The order for the complete blockade of Germany will be published in the London Gazette tomorrow and probably will become effective in a few days

The action came as new shipping losses were reported by the admiralty.

The Holland - Amerika 8,859-freighter Spaarndam sank in the Thames estuary. The crew of about 40, and one passenger, an elderly woman, were rescued by a pilot cutter.

(The line announced at Amsterdam the ship was sunk by a mine below London.)

At the same time, the admiralty disclosed the capture of two German freighters, one of which later was destroyed by a German submarine as she was being taken to a British port by a prize crew.

The communique said that the 3,670-ton North German Lloyd steamer Borkum was "abandoned and driven ashore" and that four Germans were killed in the encounter. The report said the prize crew suffered no casualties.

(A dispatch from Montevideo on Oct. 9 said the Borkum "slipped out" of port without clearance papers.

Taken To Port.

The admiralty said the other German freighter, the 4,458-ton Konsul Hendrik Fisser, was captured by the British and brought safely to port.

The British Houlder line steamer Royston Grange, 5,144 tons, sank in the Atlantic but all of the crew were saved.

(A Copenhagen dispatch said a 300-ton German trawler sank to-

SEEK WPA'S OK

City Plans Paved Driveway to Garbage Plant.

City officials will go to Columbus tomorrow to seek the approval of the WPA on a $7,700 paving project designed to provide jobs for approximately 60 men for a period of two months.

City Engineer W. C. Statler said the project calls for the construction of a new 20-foot concrete drive from Park avenue east to the garbage disposal plant.

The proposed pavement would replace a cinder drive for a distance of 1,000 feet over which more than 50,000 vehicles pass annually, he explained.

The project, it was pointed out will cost the city little or nothing since plans call for the use of surplus materials which have accumulated from other WPA street projects.

If approved, council must dedicate the roadbed to the plant before construction can be started, Statler said.

Battery D Home From 'War' Starts Job Of Thawing Out

With the five-day "war" ended, the 67 and four officers of Mansfield's Battery D, 134th field artillery were back home today and returned to their peace time pursuits—but it will take several days for them to "thaw out."

The Mansfield artillerymen took part in the nation-wide mobilization which began last Wednesday morning and ended yesterday afternoon. Ohio had 10,000 men in various concentration points over the state. The 134th was a part of the 3,000 men mobilized in Columbus.

"We had our overcoats off just about four times in the five days, and that was when we went to bed at night," one of them said today. "Boy, if we ever have to fight a winter war, we should be all set for it. We slept in the Horticulture building at the Columbus State fairground and the temperature was about equal that of a cold storage plant.

"And the kitchen was colder yet. It was under the railroad tracks for we used the underpass at the edge of the fairground for our kitchen and dining room. The

Tell Russia to Call Back Own Border Troops

Finnish Government Starts Drafting Answer To Moscow's Demands For Army To Fall Back; Premier Denies Russians Killed By Artillery.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—The Soviet ambassador to Helsingfors, V. K. Dereviański, has been recalled to Moscow because Josef Stalin, Soviet dictator, and Foreign Minister and Premier V. M. Molotov are dissatisfied with his handling of the Finnish situation, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen.

(By Associated Press)

HELSINKI—Finland will refuse Soviet Russia's demand that Finnish troops be withdrawn from the common border north of Leningrad, it appeared today from comment in government circles, which suggested that Russian forces themselves fall back.

The cabinet discussed the demand this morning, and Foreign Minister Eljas Erkko began immediately to draft an answer which may be presented today after cabinet approval.

Despite the pressure implicit in the note delivered yesterday to Finland's Moscow legation, a Finnish government spokesman chose to call it a "friendly proposal" —not an ultimatum.

He pointed out that the note carried no time limit. It called for withdrawal "without delay."

The spokesman insisted there would be no withdrawal of soldiers sent to the frontier during the fruitless negotiations, Oct. 7 to Nov. 13, over Russian territorial demands.

Withdrawal north of Leningrad would nullify the protection afforded by border fortifications in a zone where, among other places, Russia had demanded territory.

Premier Aimo K. Cajander flatly denied the Russian allegation that Finnish artillery fire yesterday killed four Russian soldiers and wounded nine—the immediate cited basis for the Russian demand that troops in the Karbelian isthmus be withdrawn to points from 12 to 16 miles from the border.

Might Be Accident.

A foreign office spokesman hinted that the Russians might have been killed accidentally and Finnish forces blamed.

Government circles generally were skeptical over Moscow's alle-

STUDY 5 COUNTS AGAINST KUHN

Jurors Deliberate on Charge Bundster Gave 'Angel From Heaven' Total of $717.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Larceny and forgery evidence against Fritz Kuhn goes to the jury today on five counts.

Judge James G. Wallace who on Friday dismissed five counts of the indictment and reserved decision on three counts, today announced that he had decided to give all five remaining counts to the jury.

The five counts cover the expenditure of $717 by Kuhn on his former "angel from heaven" —Mrs. Florence Camp—and the so-called Murray transaction.

The latter matter concerned payment of a $500 fee to Attorney James D. C. Murray with Murray denying he ever received the money. Under the original indictment Kuhn faced a possible 70 years if found guilty. Under the remaining charge, the possible maximum sentence is 35 years.

Kuhn's counsel today presented another of his many mistrial motions—this one based on newspaper articles which the jury might have seen.

Although denying the motion, the court observed that many accounts of the trial appeared to have been written particularly for morons.

Mrs. Roosevelt Willing to Testify at Dies Hearing

PRESIDENT'S WIFE WANTS TO BE 'HELP'

Declares She Would Answer Questions About American Student Union.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today she was willing to be a Dies committee witness—if she had any information which might be helpful.

She made the remark at a press conference about the same time that Major Hampden Wilson, as-investigator for the house committee on unAmericanism, was testifying that the American student union was an instrument used for spreading Communism among students.

The first lady, who has addressed the American Youth congress and said repeatedly that she did not believe it was Communist-controlled, was replying to a suggestion from Alfred M. Lilienthal of New York that she and he appear as opposing witnesses on the subject.

(The American Student union is one of several organizations making up the American Youth congress.)

Mrs. Roosevelt told her press conference she would not care to take sides as a witness in opposition to Lilienthal, who led a group which split off from the American Youth congress, but she added:

"I would answer anybody's questions asked in the interest of truth."

Wilson said a report which he submitted at a committee hearing was based on an eight-month tour of 50 colleges and universities and discussions with state and city school board members.

The investigator, who was lent to the committee by the veterans' administration also read into the record what he said were excerpts from "The Communist," a magazine of the Communist party, which declared "how important" it was "to build the American Federation of Teachers."

The excerpt was read, Wilson testified, "to show the real significance attaching to the repeated assertion that the American Federation of Teachers is strongly impregnated with Communism."

Wilson added that the article also named the American student union and the young Communist league as "agencies to be utilized in the spread of Communism in schools."

"In practically every institution of higher learning and in many city high schools," the investigator declared, "it was found that the American student union was the agency used in spreading Communism."

Wilson was to be followed by other witnesses during several days of testimony which Chairman Dies said would be devoted to investigation of unAmerican activities in American colleges, universities and public schools.

HELPS COUNTY

BUCYRUS — Attorney-General Thomas J. Herbert's recent ruling that surplus excise tax funds may be released for poor relief will bring an estimated total of $4,000 into Crawford county for relief needs, it has been estimated by the county commissioners.

Although Crawford county's relief load has gradually been lessened, it has grown in Bucyrus and is expected to reach a new peak this winter.

TRADE MARK

BRITISH STRIP MYSTERY FROM SIEGFRIED LINE

Germany's Westwall Defense Stronger Than Public's Been Told, Captain Says.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Germany's great westwall is stripped of mystery in the Army Quarterly, England's best known military publication.

An article in the first issue since the European war began, makes the wall different in principle, but more formidable than the public has been told.

The article is by Capt. G. C. Wynne. The Siegfried position, he says, is an outgrowth of new defense principles developed by General Ludendorff, of the German army, near the close of the World war.

That principle is like a football team in reverse, like putting two men only in the line, two others in defensive back position and all the rest far back, out of the play, with the receiver of a punt.

The Germans, Wynne says, used a 1-1-4 formation, the 4 being the bulk of an army, back out of the battle, but waiting to counter-attack. Massed artillery fire and other modern attack weapons, including tanks, were the reason. These largely could destroy any force concentrated in forward areas.

Ludendorff, therefore, placed scattered units, with machine guns and pill boxes, in the front area, designed to hamper the attack. Behind that, with still only a comparatively small part of the defenders, was the battle zone, intended to disorganize the attack.

This, Wynne says, is the principle of the westwall. But where the World war German defense zones were only about five miles deep, the new wall is 30.

This distance is based on military estimates of how far a heavy, artillery-carrying tank can travel under battle conditions. After eight hours its fuel will be exhausted, and 30 miles is the computed maximum.

WEDDING DATE TOLD AT AFTERNOON TEA

Miss Sarabell Kramer Will Become Bride of John H. VanWagner, Shelby, At First Presbyterian Church, Jan. 1.

WHEN Mrs. Thomas J. McDermott entertained with a candlelight tea for Miss Sarabell Kramer yesterday afternoon, it was to announce her approaching marriage to John H. VanWagner of Shelby. The affair was held at the McDermott home, 518 Sloan avenue, from 3 until 5 o'clock.

The names of the couple and the date of their wedding were written on individual ice cream logs, served to the guests from a table decorated with silver and white appointments. Miss Kramer, who is the daughter of Mrs. W. C. Kramer, 117 Stewart avenue, will become Mr. VanWagner's bride on the 27th anniversary of the wedding of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy VanWagner, Jan. 1. Rev. David N. Roller will perform the ceremony before the altar of the First Presbyterian church at 7:45 o'clock that evening.

Open church will be observed, and nuptial music, beginning at 7:30 o'clock, will be furnished by two friends of the bride, Miss Eleanor Clingan, organist, and Miss Jane Weuthrick, vocalist. Miss Kramer has chosen Miss Janet Olin to be her maid-of-honor, while her bridesmaids will be Miss Emily Burns and Miss Alice VanWagner, sister of the bridegroom from Shelby. Mr. VanWagner has not named his attendants as yet.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school and is now the office manager at the Guarantee Title company. She is a member of Chi Sigma sorority. Mr. VanWagner was graduated from Shelby high school and attended the Wharton School of Business and Finance at the University of Pennsylvania, where he was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. He is affiliated with the Auto Call company in Shelby, where the couple will reside.

From 3 until 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Kramer and Mrs. VanWagner presided at the tea table, while Mrs. Kramer and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Harold W. Kramer of Lorain, served from 4 until 5 o'clock. Other out-of-town guests at the tea included: Mrs. Laura Oman, the bridegroom's grandmother from Shelby, Mrs. Basil Swain and Mrs. Ben Worley, aunt and cousin of the bride, from Lucas, and Miss Eleanor Yetzer of Shelby.

Church Receives Two Altar Vases

Yesterday at the morning services at St. Paul Lutheran church two Gorham brass altar vases were presented to the church by Miss Estella Arras in memory of her mother, the late Mrs. J. P. Arras, and in honor of her father, J. P. Arras. Mr. and Mrs. Arras would have celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Nov. 28, and the gift was in commemoration of that event.

The two vases, which stand a trifle over 12 inches high, were fittingly inscribed with the donor's name, and with the names of her parents, Mary Rosann Weuthrick, friend of the Arras family, gave the letter of presentation, and the vases, which were filled with large yellow chrysanthemums, were dedicated during the services.

Readers Agree On Rowdyism

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

MY ARTICLE, some while ago, on rowdyism in Sunday school has brought many responses agreeing with it, but none disagreeing.

An Iowa preacher writes that his Sunday school has lately lost the services of the young woman, who was leading the juniors, because they were "such roughnecks."

"Just a sample," he said, "of what we are up against from foolish parents who have relaxed on home discipline of their children."

From Pennsylvania a Sunday school teacher writes: "It is indeed unfortunate and pathetic that so much disorder reigns in a place where, of all places, we should have order. . . . I think every teacher should let his pupils know that misbehavior will not be tolerated."

From the same state another young Sunday school teacher, who also has been a playground teacher, says she will not go on when there is not order.

Lack of Discipline.

Many who write of the problem regret, as you and I do, that Sunday school teachers, as a whole, are untrained for their work. But most also believe, as you and I do, that the prevailing bedlam at Sunday school reflects the growing lack of home discipline, especially in the more well-to-do areas.

Below is a description by a mother of conditions in one choice suburban area about Chicago, which easily could be of a Sunday school in any one of several hundred other areas which rank high economically—the very place where we should like to expect evidences that the children have been well brought up, well-disciplined at home and self-controlled away from home.

"Dear Dr. Myers—I have never read an article that so 'hit the spot' as your article about the rowdyism among children from eight to 12 years old in Sunday school.

"I started my little girl of eight to ——— about a year ago. As it was close to our home and as she was strange, I decided to stay that Sunday and see her home. . . .

Bedlam Reigned.

"The boys and girls were in separate classes and the boys knocked each other down, yelled and played tag and chased each other all over the Sunday school room. Finally, the young lady who was endeavoring to teach them said, with tears in her eyes, 'Why do you boys come to Sunday school?' and they answered, 'We Don't know—'cause our mothers make us.'

"This church is in a so-called nice neighborhood. You might expect such actions from children of a section where they have no advantages. . . . Now we have joined a church of another denomination. My little girl today has a beautiful reverence for her church and God, something I feel she would never have gotten in the other atmosphere."

Many parents who don't want their children exposed to the all too prevalent rowdyism of Sunday school can shop around, as this mother did, and find a church and Sunday school where order does prevail. But such may be hard to find and they are growing scarcer.

We will have better Sunday schools when more of our more intelligent parents turn their backs against the prevailing philosophy of letting children do as they please, and train their offspring while they are young in the alphabet of citizenship, and regard for the rights of others.

Informally Speaking...

Monday, Nov. 27.

Lucy, dear:

As this is the first I've written you since the Thanksgiving holiday, I've a lot of news of comings and goings this festive week-end. . . . Weddings, visitors and vacationers seem to be leading the parade of social events today.

Marianne

* * * * *

It was pleasant to see a number of former residents at the wedding of Bettie Hanson and Robert Martin . . . Mr. and Mrs. Trevor Watson were here from Akron (you remember, Lucy, she was Dorothy Baker before her marriage) . . . Martha Giffin, who teaches school at Lebanon (and who, incidentally is a sorority sister of the bride) was in town visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Giffin, and went to the wedding . . . Charlotte Gray, Susan Belle Paste, and other students at various Ohio colleges, were there too. . . . And by the way, Lucy, one of the wedding gifts that Mr. and Mrs. Martin appreciated most was an electric waffle iron—presented to Mr. Martin by the youngsters in his eighth grade home room at the Bath township schools, where he teaches in Osborn. . . . They gave it to him the day he came up for the wedding with a speech and everything.

* * * * *

Mr. and Mrs. John Tillotson (you'll probably remember her better as Martha Hering) were in town for a little while last week. They drove from their home in Pittsburgh, Pa. to Granville, where Martha was formerly a student at Denison, and then came up here to visit with Martha's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hering. They've gone back to Pittsburgh now, and Mrs. Hering accompanied them there for a week's stay. . . . If you're in town during the Christmas season (and I do hope you will be) perhaps you'll have a chance to visit with Martha as she and her husband are coming back for a longer visit then.

* * * * *

I'M AFRAID this is the week for goodbyes at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Weller. . . . Their son, Carl, who's been here since last Wednesday, left today for his home in Morgantown, W. Va. . . . and on Wednesday, their daughter, Helen (she's Mrs. George Gillespie now, you know), will return to her home in Salt Lake City, Utah. . . . She's been here since early November.

* * * * *

Since you didn't get over for the week-end, I'm afraid you missed seeing Marcia Roach. . . . She was here visiting with her sisters as well as her parents in Sullivan. . . . Marcia has been in New York City working for Westinghouse at the World's fair, and she's now employed by that company in Pittsbrugh, Pa.

* * * * *

WHILE on the subject of far-away Mansfielders, I'm wondering if you ever see the Akron Beacon-Journal, 'cause there was a picture of our own Jane Wilson, now in New York, right on the front page of that paper the other day. . . . It showed Jane in a fluffy parka hood and winter ensemble—a new fashion must—and told of her vocalizing with Fred Waring and his radio show.

* * * * *

Just had a card from Mrs. William F. Frankeberger, who's visiting out in Colorado Springs, Colo. now—says she went out on the streamliner, Rocket—its second trip. . . . And speaking of vacationers to warmer climes, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lex left yesterday for Florida, accompanied by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Schrack. They will visit with Mr. and Mrs. Dan Dickson and family, Mansfielders who have a winter home in Lake Wales. . . . They'll all attend the Thanksgiving Day dinner at the Women's club there on Thursday (when Florida observes the holiday)—an annual affair for all vacationing Ohioans in that state.

* * * * *

AS I'VE said so many times before, Lucy, I think our Mansfield collegians are just bound for success. . . . Thelma Still (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Still) a junior at Wheaton college in Wheaton, Ill. has been elected class editor for the 1941 college annual, Tower. . . . Thelma is also a valuable member of the Philalethean Literary society and the Wheaton Record staff — needless to say, she's an English major.

* * * * *

Mrs. Thomas J. McDermott gave a tea yesterday afternoon announcing the date of the approaching marriage of Pat Kramer and Johnny VanWagner. . . . And Mr. McDermott saw to it that they had appropriate music for the affair—Bonnie Baker's cute recording of "Oh Johnny, Oh" was played all during the afternoon. . . . By the way, Lucy, try to be in town on New Year's day 'cause Pat and Johnny are going to have a very pretty wedding at 7:30 o'clock that evening.

* * * * *

Guess that's all the news this time, Lucy—more next week.

Lovingly,

Marianne

Are Career, Marriage Possible?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A correspondent recently wrote that she wanted a career, but wasn't sure whether she could pay the price. Could I advise her?

This girl knows that she has executive ability.. Her whole family has depended on her since childhood. People often have told her that she has originality and inventiveness. She did well in school. She knows that she could work her way up to an administrative position and make a success of it. And she longs to do this. But just as much or more she wants to retain all the femininity she has, to live a rich, satisfying woman's life.

And she has been told that she can't have both.

Oh, yes, you can become a "woman executive," they've told her. But what an unnatural and undesirable thing to be! In the first place, they'll say, you'll find yourself dressing like a man, you'll be perpetually tailor-made. You'll shingle your hair without waving it, and you'll forget that fashion exists. So much for your appearance.

As for your actual life, it will be an endles round of "conferences" and "deals," with some times a week-end alone in some dull country place to sleep it all off and then begin over again.

If all this were true, what woman would want a career, a big busines success, however much money and reputation it might bring her?

But it isn't true. One of the women's magazines has just settled the matter by appealing to 37,000,000 American women. Inexperienced in business life as many of these women were, they had their wits about them. Two to one, they came out in favor of the business woman, insisting that she lost none of her feminine charm, forfeited none of the things dear to women.

As her sisters—thousands and millions of them—see her, the successful business woman is just as likely to have a lot of beaux and acquire a life interest in one of them, as if she were the silliest, prettiest little incompetent her home town ever produced.

Are men afraid of successful women? Uncomfortable in talking to them? No, nothing of the sort, if the women are charming and attractive.

And a normal woman never becomes so absorbed in business projects that she forgets to choose becoming clothes for herself or neglects to attach to her curls precisely the little hat that is going to help her finish her complete conquest of the desirable man who has asked her out to dinner. She doesn't, of course, neglect her work for romance. But she sees to it that romance gets its innings. Nor is this difficult to do. For many men she has a glamor that the purely domestic girl can never have.

Therefore, according to this view—and it's the view of the great majority of our countrywomen—a girl need make no sacrifice when choosing a career. On the contrary, let her be as feminine as she pleases. Let her go in rather elaborately for clothes, if she likes them, and of course she does. Let her frequent the most expert beauty parlors. Let her have all the men friends she has time for, and dine or dance or go to the play with them every night of her life.

For there's nothing to prevent her marrying, is there? Nothing to prevent her having the happiest conceivable home life and a fine, bouncing baby now and then?

Men executives don't deny themselves love and marriage. Why should women? The answer is, of course, that they don't. Which is all very natural and as it should be.

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"She's never dared to say very much to me about it," he said. "She probably knew I'd have had her thrown into the daffy house if she broadcasted too violently. But she's crazily jealous because you've kept your face and figger, while she's slumped, and because of a career, while she's only had mediocre good fortune, and because—oh! never mind that."

"To sum it all up, I don't think she's quite all there," he went on, still haltingly. "One vacant room, at least, in her upper story. But she's sane enough to be responsible, and she's going to take the consequences of her latest performance. But enough of Ede. She'll keep! What I've got to do now is to tell you all about this jam from which you and Lil and old Harry have just rescued me."

"I had very little to do with it," I told him honestly.

"You were there, weren't you?" he demanded, and went on swiftly before I could do any more disclaiming.

"If anybody had told me that I would be such a super-powered idiot as to fall for that woman's schemes the way I did, I'd have had that person committed to an asylum for observation before you could sneeze twice. But she had me buffaloed for fair with her threats of spilling everything to you. I just couldn't stand that, and tonight I came prepared to strip myself of every stiver I possessed to satisfy her. But when she demanded dear old Dad's head on a charger, I went berserk. Not even to save myself with you could I stand for that."

He paused, evidently waiting for some comment from me.

"I know, Dicky," I said softly. "I was so proud of you."

"Proud—of me?" he repeated incredulously. Then he gave a bitter laugh.

"You certainly have a lot to be proud of," he said. "It ought to keep you busy."

"It does," I returned demurely. "But tell me, who is this woman, anway?"

I put the question with the sole idea of diverting his mind from the somber track upon which it appeared to be running. And the ruse worked.

"I wish I knew," he said. "I can see now that she's connected with some dangerous gang, but when she first came into the office, she seemed harmless enough. Ede had picked her up somewhere. It's plain now, of course, that the woman must have found out all about my different set-ups, and selected Ede at the magazine as the easiest and most gullible approach. At any rate, before Ede went away, she had this woman around the office a lot helping her.

"She was a fairly competent individual," Dicky went on judicially, "and I can see now that she played her cards extremely well. She was never obtrusive, and did her work so well that when Ede went on her long vacation, it seemed that there was but one thing to do—have her take Edith's place till she came back.

"She was an extremely Machiavellian person," Dick said hesitatingly after a pause. "She did absolutely nothing out of routine, but saw to everything so competently that I turned over a lot of the magazine business to her and grew to depend on her a lot."

He stopped short, and I saw the muscles of his jaw tighten.

"Then," he said, "she started having Babs in the office."

QUICK COUNTING HELPS

To make a deliberate sacrifice bid when vulnerable especially one on which you expect to be beaten a number of tricks requires not courage so much as ability to count quickly. If you are able to reckon that the probable points lost through your bid will be less than those which the opponents will score against you at their own contract, then making the bid is a matter of mathematics rather than courage.

	♠ Q 10 9 8 7 6 3 2 ♥ None ♦ 4 3 ♣ J 7 3

(Dealer West North-South vulnerable).

It takes quite a man to bid a grand slam when vulnerable on a hand which he had consistently passed up to that stage but that is exactly what happened on this deal.

West opened with 1-Heart. East bid 3-Diamonds. West 3-Hearts. East 4-Hearts and West using the Blackwood convention now asked about aces with 4-No Trumps. When East showed one of these with 5-Diamonds. West went to 6-Hearts and East to 7-Hearts.

Until now South had not even considered bidding. But when he figured that the slam bonus of 1,000 and a non-vulnerable game worth about 300 would be added to the trick value of 210, making a total of 1,510 points, he reckoned that he would go down only about five tricks doubled at 7-Spades, costing 1,400 points. So he bid 7-Spades. West thereupon did some estimating in doubling. himself and then did 7-No Trumps which produced 1,520 points. Both of the last two calls were beauties.

Wise Housekeeper Plans Easy, Hastily Fixed Menus Today

By RUTH CHAMBERS

Life moves along so swiftly these days that if we want to keep up with the times we must speed up our daily tasks. Minutes must be clipped wherever possible, and quick tricks in the kitchen can be used to provide leisure time for other activities.

Menu

Pineapple Juice
Broiled Steak Sandwich
Potato Chips
Pickles
Fruit Salad
Apple Sauce and Cookies
Coffee Milk

Perhaps one of the greatest contrasts between the lives of the homemakers of today and those of their mothers and grandmothers is in the comparative amount of time spent in the kitchen. Preparing meals for a family used to be literally a full-time job. Today, thanks to modern conveniences, one can be a good cook and still have time for many other interests and activities.

Plan Quickly Cooked Meals.

One of the most business-like and efficient ways of gaining extra hours for social activities, club work, a favorite sport, or for other household tasks is to have in one's cooking repertory a list of quickly cooked meals. Sometimes it may be lunch which can be prepared in a hurry; sometimes it is dinner. Sometimes these quick meals must have the dash of style which turns them into company fare. For, when you have guests, it is especially desirable to prepare a meal quickly, yet to have it appetizing. That gives you more time to entertain your guests and to win a reputation as a perfect hostess.

These quick meals don't happen just by chance, and hurrying won't always accomplish your purpose. But a little forethought and planning will. And if you know exactly what you want to do and how to do it, there will be no time lost wondering what you should do next, and haste won't make waste.

Use Quickly Cooked Foods.

Quickly cooked foods or those which can be prepared in advance may be relied upon as the basis of the menu. Or one can turn to the many delicious ready-to-serve meals now available in the markets.

A very tasty quick meal is pictured. It consists of five-minute steak sandwiches, served with sliced cucumber pickles and potato chips. A salad and dessert, or fresh fruit, with bread and rolls and a beverage, make this a complete meal.

Here are directions for preparing these sandwiches, and suggestions for other main dishes for quick meals.

Five-Minute Steak Sandwich.

1 pound ground beef
2 tablespoons grated onion
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
6 slices bread or buns
Butter
Prepared mustard

Combine beef, onion, salt and pepper and mix thoroughly. Toast bread or buns on one side. Butter untoasted side of bread and spread with the prepared mustard. Cover each slice with ground beef mixture, making sure the edges are well covered so that they will not burn before the meat is done. Arrange on broiler rack, allowing three inches between surface of meat and source of heat. Broil five minutes.

Creamed Chipped Beef With Waffles.

2 tablespoons butter
¼ pound sliced chipped beef
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons minced parsley
2 cups milk
Pepper

Melt butter, add shredded chipped beef, and cook, stirring occasionally until edges curl. Add flour and parsley. When well mixed, add milk and stir until thick. Season to taste. Serve on waffles.

Waffles.

2 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1½ cups milk
6 tablespoons lard

Sift dry ingredients. Separate eggs. Beat yolks, add milk and continue beating with rotary beater. Add sifted dry ingredients and continue beating with rotary beater until smooth. Add melted lard and mix well. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into batter. Put four to six tablespoons of batter into waffle iron and bake until waffle stops steaming.

Lamb Chop Grill.

Have rib or loin lamb chops cut at least one inch thick. Preheat broiler. Place the chops on the broiler rack. Arrange the rack so that the top of the chops will be at least three inches from the source of the heat. When one side of the chops is nicely browned, season with salt and pepper and turn. Place small link sausage and tomatoes stuffed with cooked corn on the broiler, and if you have them add slices of cooked potato liberally sprinkled with grated cheese and dotted with butter. Return to the broiler and continue to cook until the chops and the sausages are done and the tomatoes cooked. Turn sausages so that all sides are brown.

HOROSCOPE

Tuesday, Nov. 28.

An eventful day, with several intriguing developments, is forecast from the dominant lunar aspects. An element of suddenness and surprise arises, with a demand for change of plans, associations and probably objectives and surroundings. There are factors obscure and tricky to be guarded against by alertness, tact and strategem, when caught in treacherous predicaments. Shun impetuosity and strife; also refrain from extravagance or lavish indulgence. There may be peculiar reactions on the private life, secretive and dangerous.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of sudden, peculiar and intriguing twists to the affairs. These may be favorable if managed by precaution, vigilance and finesse rather than direct or audacious methods. Compromise rather than quarrels may win out, but beware of extravagance, doubtful outlay of funds and all manner of pitfalls and schemes. Change seems probable. Suspicious circumstances may have unhappy reactions unless tact and keen judgment are used.

A child born on this day, although a generous, friendly and compassionate nature, at the same time may be fickle, changeable, and given to intrigue or irresponsibility in both business and private dealings.

FINNS SET TO REJECT SOVIET BORDER DEMAND

Answer to Tell Moscow to Withdraw Own Troops From Finnish Frontier.

gation of an artillery attack. They suggested that a better way to avert any further incidents would be withdrawal by the Russians themselves.

The sudden sharpening of relations between Russia and Finland, herself once part of Imperial Russia, came just as Finns were beginning to settle down to normal life with the relaxation of black-out restrictions and the reopening of schools.

Withdraw Without Delay, Russia Warns.

MOSCOW—(AP)— Soviet Russian troops in mass meetings following a "border incident" in which Finnish artillery allegedly killed or wounded 13 Red army soldiers, today urged the government to "adopt strictest measures."

The meetings were held as Moscow awaited an answer to an ultimatum-like note in which Russia demanded that Finland withdraw her border garrisons to prevent a repetition.

Troops in the Moscow district adopted resolutions declaring "there is a limit to patience."

"Ten days were enough to conquer Poland," the resolutions sternly reminded Finland, which was left facing the dubious alternative of complying with the Russian demand or risking the wrath of the mighty neighbor whose proposals for territorial concessions she has sternly resisted.

Some Moscow factory workers were also reported to have met and adopted resolutions expressing indignation against Finland.

The Russian note was delivered last night to the Finnish minister, Baron Aarno Yr Jo-Koskinen, a few hours after the incident in which, Russia charged, four Red soldiers were killed and nine wounded.

The note demanded that Finland withdraw her troops "without delay" a distance of 12 to 16 miles from the Soviet frontier on the Karelian isthmus.

Continued troop concentration at this point, the note said, "not only creates a menace to Leningrad, but is in fact a hostile act against the U. S. S. R."

Might Be "Spark."

Foreign observers were unable to agree on Moscow's intentions, but they expressed belief that the alleged "border incident" might easily provide the "spark" which could set Russia in motion to compel Finland's compliance with territorial demands.

(In Helsinki, a Finnish government spokesman said that Finland would not withdraw the troops along her borders. Finnish Premier Aimo K. Cajander emphatically denied that there had been any shooting by Finns on the frontier.)

The Russian note, which was signed by Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotov and handed to a representative of the Finnish legation at a midnight conference, charged that Finnish artillery suddenly fired on Soviet troops stationed near the border village of Mainila yesterday.

Seven cannon shots were fired in all, the note declared.

Only a few hours before the alleged incident was reported, the newspaper Pravda, Communist party organ, loosed a bitter and threatening attack upon the Finnish premier, whom it urged to consider the fate of the "Polish jackanapes—the far-sighted Beck and the far-sighted Moscicki."

(Ignace Moscicki was president of Poland and Col. Jozef Beck was foreign minister before the state was partitioned by Germany and Russia.)

Pravda's attack upon Premier Cajander was based largely upon his speech last Thursday in Helsinki, 10 days after the breakdown of Finnish-Russian negotiations in Moscow.

Cajander had said his government had gone as far as possible toward meeting Russian demands. Finland, he said, was ready to resume negotiations at any time, but only on a basis "not implying violation of her vital interests."

Brothers-In-Law Blast Away At Each Other With Guns.

CINCINNATI—(INS)—Four persons were held today after an old fashioned shotgun duel reminiscent of Kentucky feud days.

According to police reports, Bradley Moore, 44, and Manford Wayson, 28 brothers-in-law, went into the street and blasted away at each other because of a family quarrel. Neither was injured.

William Wayson, Moore's father-in-law, and William J. Wayson, another brother-in-law, were held along with the two participants.

Dodge Heiress Gets Trust Fund Set Up By Father.

DETROIT—(AP)—Mrs. Frances Dodge Johnson, celebrating her 25th birthday today, came into control of her inheritance of more than $10,000,000 from the Dodge automobile fortune.

The inheritance represents her share of a trust fund established by her father, John F. Dodge, and the accumulated interest from it. Income from the fund has paid her living expenses during the trust period which ended today.

IT WORKED!

SIOUX FALLS, S. D.—(AP)—Gabe Caffrey, local newspaper columnist, found a neat way of ducking an overtime parking ticket.

He pleaded, and the city prosecutor and Municipal Judge Gibbs agreed, that his aged car was not a vehicle. "I cannot dismiss the case," said the court. "There isn't any case—there isn't any car, so the court cannot take jurisdiction."

and Mrs. Albert Crippen of New London, who survive. A younger sister, Nancy, at home, also survives.

In Mansfield General hospital, Francis Leemaster, 29, still battled for life today following a truck accident late Friday in which his windpipe was severed and he received other major injuries.

Leemaster, a driver for the West Dry Cleaning company, who must breathe through a tube in his throat, was given a "fair" chance to live today by physicians. He received a third blood transfusion this morning and the attending physician said he has shown slight improvement since yesterday.

The young man suffered a deep throat cut, and a fractured collar bone, nose and jaw when his truck collided with another near Springmill. The throat injury severed the vocal cords as well as the windpipe and it was believed doubtful whether Leemaster will be able to speak again if he recovers.

In the only week-end accident reported in the county a car driven by Henry G. Lantz, R. D. 4, Mansfield, crashed into the front porch of the home of Charles Stahl on Bahl avenue in East Mansfield late last night. The porch and car were damaged, but Lantz was not injured, Deputy Sheriff J. R. Hetler reported.

Ashland Judge Weighs New Plea of Village Leaders.

ASHLAND—Judge H. E Culbertson of common pleas court here will pass on the newest delay in the pleading of two Brunswick officials charged with signing false affidavits against Robert M. Greenlun and causing him to lose his job with the local branch of the state highway depeartment.

Mark M. Lutz, justice of the peace and Walter R. Petchler delayed the actions again when both submitted identical bills of particulars, asking the court to inform them of the time, place and manner in which the crime occurred as charged in the indictment.

Only recently the two attacked the indictments as being defective.

Special music was sung by the church choir directed by Mrs. John Warden at the organ. A covered-dish dinner was served at noon by the Ladies' Aid society under the supervision of its president, Mrs. Harry Tiffany.

Rev. Paetznick will leave Friday for the Lucas community where he will take up his duties as pastor of the St. Paul's and Pleasant Valley Lutheran churches in that community. Rev. Paetznick has served as the assistant pastor at First Lutheran church here since 1934.

OK'S ORDER TO SEIZE EXPORTS

King George Sets in Motion Britain's Reprisal Action for Mine Warfare.

day after striking a mine off the Danish island of Langeland.)

The seizure of German exports as well as her contraband imports was ordered as a reprisal for German mine laying in shipping channels without notification, it was announced.

(Germany has not said she was sowing mines in British channels, but asserted she had the right to do so if she desired.)

British naval sources expressed the belief the reprisal would be more effective than in the World war because, they said, of Germany's need for cash and foreign credits.

Britain was expected to explain, during the brief delay in making the blockade effective, that she was anxious to avoid penalizing neutral trade while trying to punish the reich.

(France announced officially Nov. 22 that she had decided to take similar measures to cut off German exports.)

Six neutrals with large shipping interests — Holland, Denmark, Belgium, Sweden, Italy and Japan—have made advance representations against the decision announced by Prime Minister Chamberlain to "subject to seizure on the high seas" all "exports of German origin or ownership" whether carried in Nazi ships or under neutral flags.

While the government gave careful attention to the neutrals' protests, three more large sea losses—the former Polish liner Pilsudski, the armed merchant cruiser Rawalpindi, and the Dutch freighter Spaarndam raised the total of sunken shipping in the past eight days to more than 116,000 tons.

280 Lose Lives.

The loss of life aboard the Rawalpindi was estimated at about 280, with only 17 of the 16,697-ton vessel's crew of about 300 men escaping. Seven persons were missing from the Pilsudski. The Spaarndam struck a mine in the Thames estuary, an Amsterdam dispatch said.

The 14,194-ton Pilsudski, first trans-Atlantic liner built for the Polish republic, had been chartered to the British admiralty. The Rawalpindi, former liner in the British-Orient trade, was one of the merchant cruiser fleet supplementing Britain's regular warships.

But Chamberlain, in a broadcast to the Empire and the United States last night, declared "none of these losses affects our overwhelming naval superiority," and said that "already we know the secrets of the magnetic mine."

"We shall soon master the magnetic mine as we have already mastered the U-boat," the prime minister assured Britain, expressing "complete confidence in our ultimate victory."

He also drew a distinction between war and peace aims.

Britain's war aim, he said, is the "defeat of that aggressive, bullying mentality which seeks continually to dominate other peoples by force . . . ."

And her peace aim: to "establish a new Europe . . . in which nations which inhabit it will approach their difficulties with good will and mutual tolerance . . . ." and "with some machinery capable of conducting and guiding the development of a new Europe in the right direction."

RARE GRIDIRON GAME

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—(U.P.)—A strange football game was played between Portsmouth Priory and Providence Country Day schools. Neither team punted during the game. Neither team was penalized. And the ball was lost on downs only once as Priory won 19 to 7.

Fire Starts In Theater, Spreads To Nearby Structures.

WARSAW, Ky.—(AP)—Firemen from four cities brought a spectacular fire under control early today after it had razed two buildings, driven patrons from a theater and guests from a hotel, and caused damage estimated by Sheriff Earl Spencer at between $40,000 and $50,000.

The blaze, apparently started when a film reel caught fire in the theater.

fice would be approached to determine their stand on his project.

"We are going to find out how the various candidates stand in regard to our pension amendment," he said. "We are going to ask candidates for congress to pledge themselves to vote for a reduction of the age requirement for receiving present old age pensions from 65 to 60. We also feel that the federal government should make larger contributions toward pensions than at present."

Bigelow said congress would be asked to contribute two dollars for every state dollar for pensions instead of the present 50-50 basis. He also said he would call upon Governor Bricker to urge the state pension laws to proxide a maximum $40 monthly pensions authorized recently by congress. Ohio has not liberalized its statutes to meet this $10 increase in maximum awards.

FACING CHARGE

Wounded Policeman Accused of Killing Fellow Officer.

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—(AP)—A charge of murder was lodged today against Patrolman William Slockbower, 40, as he lay critically wounded in a hospital in which his fellow partolman, Patrick Draper, 52, succumbed.

Police Chief Harry Walsh said Draper, a veteran of 23 years on the force, died of bullet wounds inflicted by Slockbower after a quarrel in which Slockbower accused Draper of "squealing."

Slockbower then turned the police pistol on himself, Walsh added.

FIRE RAZES HOME

JOHNSVILLE—Fire which resulted from a defective flue destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chesroun, two miles east of Johnsville, Sunday morning. A part of the household furnishings downstairs was saved, but the upstairs furniture was lost.

THEATERS

FOR the past 15 years Greta Garbo has been going to retire, and always just before one of her new pictures is released. "Ninotchka" is no exception, and just as her new comedy is ready for general release, there coms an announcement that the Hermit of Hollywood is about to return to her native Sweden for the duration of the war. This is Garbo's 22nd American-made picture, and the first comedy she has ever done. Melvyn Douglas, who is her leading man, is one of the few actors who has appeared in more than one picture with the Somber Swede. The late John Gilbert topped the list by making four pictures with her; Nils Asther was her leading man twice as was Conrad Nagel. Even the most ardent movie followers probably have forgotten that Ricardo Cortez, Lars Hanson, Antonio Moreno, Jack Barrymore, Charles Bickford and Gavin Gordon were once her leading men.

The City Beautiful.

When Charles Dickens visited America he wasn't very kind in some of his discriptions. He wrote of Washington D. C. and ridiculed its "spacious avenues that begin and end in nowhere." The great author should have lived to see "Mr. Smith Goes To Washington," which shows the capital's "spacious avenues" lined with white marble buildings of classical Grecian design. The picture, co-starring Jean Arthur and James Stewart, is at the Ohio.

Horse Is Dipsomaniac.

All of the ways not to train a race horse are shown in "The Day The Bookies Wept," the Joe Penner comedy at the Madison. Joe faces a unique problem for his horse is an habitual drunkard and gets "lit" at the most inopportune times. Betty Grable is another one of Joe's problems. "Intermezzo: A Love Story" with Leslie Howard is also on the bill, which runs through Tuesday.

Power-Henie Romance.

Tyrone Power and Sonja Henie are starred in "Second Fiddle," but Rudy Vallee and luscious Mary Healy are runners-up in the cast. The story revolves around Hollywood's hunt for an actress to play the leading role in a great American novel which is to be filmed. A peep behind the scenes in the film city, Irving Berlin songs and the Henie brand of skating are included. The Ritz is also showing "Code of The Streets" tomorrow.

"Sweetheart" At Majestic.

Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald, who are busy making "New Moon" are co-starred in "Sweethearts," opening at the Majestic tomorrow. They portray a pair of Broadway musical comedy stars who are husband and wife in private life and whose jealousies and tempermental outbursts keep their producer, Frank Morgan, in hot water. Dennis O'Keefe is featured in "Burn 'Em Up O'Connor."

Search for Golden Boy.

The search for a boy to play the role of the violinist-fighter in "Golden Boy" was almost as sensational as the search for a Scarlett O'Hara. Because he had to be young, talented but not a sophisticated actor type, and had to play the violin and be able to box with the best of them. William Holden, a university student got the role and made a hit. The picture is at the Park.

Four National Football Teams Sport New Crowns

Barons Drop 1-0 Hockey Decision

SYRACUSE—(INS)—The Syracuse Stars and the Cleveland Barons of the International-American Hockey League stood all even on their week-end play today after the Stars scored a 1 to 0 victory in Syracuse last night.

Jack (Frenchy) Toupin stole the puck and scored unassisted in the opening minute of the third period for the only tally in a roughly played game.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

SOUTH BEND—(U.P.)—May I take it all back?

I mean the things I have said about Tennessee's football team being so good and no other club had a right to be on the same field with it.

I was wrong. The Southern California team that licked Notre Dame here Saturday can walk on any field, anytime, with anybody.

The Trojans are big, mighty big. They're fast, mighty fast. They're sure, mighty sure. And there is one h—l of a lot of 'em. When one goes off, his replacement is just as good, maybe better.

The Trojans beat a good Notre Dame here Saturday, perhaps the best Notre Dame team since Rockne's last one in 1930. The score was 20 to 12, and I don't believe the most rabid Irishman this side of Dublin could find fault with the score. As a matter of fact, a score so close was a tribute to a game Notre Dame eleven. Outweighed, outmanned, outclassed, the Irish fought hard, tried desperately, and made a thrilling game of it.

Had the boys from Notre Dame been a little less keen, a little less determined, the men from Southern California would have beaten them by four or five touchdowns. The Trojans are that much better. They have everything. And in abundance. When Grenny Lansdell comes out in goes Doyle Nave.

* * *

When Nave comes out in goes Ambrose Schindler. In short, there are backs in abundance, and linemen are a dime a dozen.

What would be the outcome if the U. S. C. and Tennessee met in the Rose Bowl?

Heaven only knows. Southern California has power, speed, and endless reserve power. Tennessee has power, speed, and reserves to burn.

If I had to bet, I'd still lean toward Tennessee. And for only one reason. The Vols are a little meaner, hit a little harder, and are a little hungrier for fame. Of course, these two teams aren't in the Rose Bowl. U. S. C. has to take care of U. C. L. A. and Tennessee has to be invited.

But they'll be there. And what a game! The vicious Vols against the terrific Trojans.

I might even pay to see it.

Ohio State to Name 1940 Captain Tonight

Selects Leader At Appreciation Dinner; DeSales Only Unbeaten Ohio Combine.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The Buckeye capital's football fans pay tribute tonight to Ohio State university's western conference champs with an appreciation dinner at which the Bucks will name their 1940 captain.

Hilarity over the first outright league title since 1920 will be quieted a bit by the memory of Saturday's 21-14 setback from Michigan—a Wolverine conquest which came after the Bucks had constructed a first period 14-point edge.

The Big Ten season, for the Bucks, was just 51 seconds too long. If it had been a minute shorter, Ohio would have wound up its conference chores unbeaten, but the hungry Wolves rammed over their game-winning touchdown with 50 seconds to go, on one of the oldest plays in the game.

With the score knotted at 14-all, and the headlinesman signalling fourth down and 24 yards to go, the Wolves lined up in placekick formation. Fred Trosko was holding the ball on the 32-yard line, and Tom Harmon was in kicking position. Harmon needed at least a 50-yard kick to get over the bar 42 yards away, and few of the 80,227 spectators expected him to try.

He didn't. He faked the kick, blocked a couple of Ohio would-be kick-blockers, and Trosko lifted the pigskin and romped around his left end for the winning touchdown.

A half hour later came the news that Northwestern had held Iowa's rambling tall corn lads to a 7-7 tie, giving the Bucks the undisputed title. A Buckeye victory or tie against Michigan would have served the same purpose, but Ohio couldn't make it.

It was Ohio's fourth outright Big Ten championship, the others coming in 1916, 1917 and 1920, followed by a split with Minnesota in 1935. For the first time in history, the Bucks hold both the basketball and football crowns of the Big Ten.

Michigan's winning touchdown was the only one of Saturday's quintet of markers that did not result from a break. The Bucks converted two intercepted passes into touchdown drives, while the Wolves counted their first two after snatching up Buckeye fumbles.

Ohio collegiate football drama—Except for the Dayton-Ohio Wesleyan epilogue next Saturday—was a matter of history today. Muskingum was the Ohio loop winner, the little Desales went into the record books with the year's only unbeaten-untied performance.

Saturday's results: Bethany 13, Heidelberg 0; Wittenberg 14, Oberlin 0; Upsala 46, Alfred Holbrook 0, and Michigan 21, Ohio State 14.

To only one star went the honor of being a unanimous choice—Nile Kinnick, the brilliant Iowa all-around back. He drew 10 first team ballots. RITZ NIGHT CLUB DROPS MATCH TO LORAIN TEAM

With Pompein of Cooke's Recreation bowling team of Lorain, smashing out a spectacular 714 total, the Ritz Night club dropped three games in a North Central Ohio Traveling league match at Lorain Sunday. Adams' Team Wins Fourth Home Contest

Keeps Slate Clean by Edging Akron Bantams, 6-3.

Four victories in a row!

That is the record the Adams' bantamweights has compiled in its home games this year.

Coach Hank Richards' combine edged the Akron bantamweights, 6 to 3, at Blue Goose field yesterday to account for the latest conquest.

The Mansfielders spotted Akron to a 3-0 lead in the opening period when Red Manning kicked a field goal from the Adams' 10-yard line. Akron set the stage for the scoring play by recovering a Mansfield fumble on the winners' eight.

* * *

Bush heaved a 40-yard aerial to Kurek in the end zone late in the second period to score the only touchdown of the game and give the Adams' club a lead it never relinquished.

The second half developed into a punting duel in midfield with neither club being able to penetrate inside the enemy's 20-yard stripe.

Bucks, Cornell Among Champs

Missouri, Texas A. and M. Also In Select List; U. S. C. Needs Two Wins to Join Group.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Cornell, Missouri, Ohio State and Texas A. and M. sported new football crowns today, while Southern California, still shy the headpiece, wore all the other trappings of royalty.

The Trojans still have to win two more games before officially becoming Pacific coast conference champions. But no one expects them to lose after seeing that 20-12 rout of Notre Dame Saturday.

With the season about ended, Southern California is figured for the Rose Bowl assignment next January, and the line is forming for teams that would like to be there, too, or at least break into some sort of pre-season game. Principal candidates now are Tennessee and the Texas Aggies, standouts in the small undefeated-and-untied brigade, with Tennessee the first choice, if it can get past Kentucky and Auburn.

Cornell walked off with the east's awards by whipping Pennsylvania, 26-0. That eighth straight triumph gave the Big Red team first place in the "Ivy league" and the entire eastern sector. Duquesne, also unbeaten and untied, may dispute the second title, if it does as well against Detroit Saturday as it did in licking Carnegie Tech, 22-7, for the Pittsburgh city title.

* * *

Missouri's Tigers walked away with Big Six laurels, and Ohio State backed into its first Big Ten title since 1920. Missouri clinched the championship with a 20-0 win over Kansas. Ohio's Buckeyes lost 21-14, to Michigan in their climax game, but finished on top when Northwestern tied Iowa, 7-7.

Southern Methodist's unexpected 21-0 triumph over Baylor eliminated the Bears as a last threat to the Aggies' Southwest conference supremacy.

The Southern conference race also reached the windup stage, with Duke shading Clemson in claiming the unofficial title.

Along with these champions, the season's honor roll includes Colorado Mines and San Jose (Cal.) State in the unbeaten-and-untied group; Tulane, Georgetown, Rutgers and U. C. L. A. in the tied-but-undefeated division, and Boston college, Holy Cross, North Carolina, Georgia Tech, Kentucky, Nebraska, Utah, Oregon State and Santa Clara, each defeated once.

East—Army-Navy is the game of the week, despite Navy's 28-0 licking by Princeton. Nevertheless, Boston college and Holy Cross probably will play a lot more football in their Saturday meeting. B. C. tuned up Saturday by whipping Kansas State, 38-7.

Other windup games include Fordham-New York U., Stanford-Dartmouth, at New York, and George Washington-West Virginia. Of these, only George Washington played Saturday, beating Bucknell, 7-6.

Yale redeemed a dismal season by trouncing Harvard, 20-7. Penn State handed Pitt a final 10-0 licking; Colgate and Columbia played a scoreless tie, and Lafayette beat Lehigh 29-13.

Midwest: Purdue won the "Old Oaken Bucket" and third place in the Big Ten by nosing out Indiana, 7-6. Minnesota walloped Wisconsin, 23-6, and left the Badgers sharing the cellar with Chicago, 46-0 victim of Illinois.

Nebraska captured second place in the Big Six by downing Oklahoma, 13-7.

Oklahoma Aggies moved into a tie with Washington university for the Missouri valley conference lead by beating Creighton, 20-9, and Tulsa took third with a 14-6 win over Drake.

Southwest: Although the Southwest conference race is settled, Texas university's sophomores have a great chance to cover themselves with glory when they meet the Texas Aggies Thursday. They are tied for second now with Baylor, which meets Rice Saturday. Texas Christian, which beat Rice, 21-0, for its first conference win, plays S. M. U. Independent Texas Tech, 13-0 winner over Montana, plays Loyola of the south Thursday.

Pacific coast: Southern California returns to the conference wars against Washington, 20-13 winner over Oregon Thursday. Meanwhile, U. C. L. A. still unbeaten in the circuit although tied 13-13 by Oregon State, plays Washington State on the second Thanksgiving. The two leaders clash Dec. 9. Unbeaten little San Jose State winds up its 13-game season Thursday against Drake.

South: Tennessee, No. 1 Rose Bowl candidate, has to hurdle the Kentucky "jinx" at Lexington, Ky., Thursday and defeat Auburn Dec. 9 to finish a perfect season. The Vols, idle last week, saw Georgia Tech move into the Southeastern conference lead by beating Florida, 21-7. Tulane, 52-0 winner over Sewanee, moved up even with Tennessee. All three are unbeaten in the circuit. Tech plays Georgia and Tulane faces Louisiana State Saturday.

Auburn, 7-0 winner over Georgia, plays Florida Thursday, while Alabama faces Vanderbilt in another windup game.

Rocky Mountain Big Seven: Thursday's Colorado-Denver game may decide a muddled title race, but only if Colorado wins as expected. Utah finished its season Thursday with a 27-0 win over Utah State to tie the Buffaloes for the lead.

Colorado Mines, unbeaten winner of the Rocky Mountain conference crown winds up its season Thursday against Regis.

DIPPMAN WINS WEEKLY RIFLE SHOOT SATURDAY

Fred Dippman annexed high honors in the weekly shoot staged by the Mansfield Muzzle Loader Rifle club in a match at the club range Saturday. He collected two firsts and a pair of seconds to finish with a .522 total. Ed Adams was second with a .500 mark.

SHERIFF KEEPS GUN IN HOLSTER

STANTON, Mich. — (AP) — Sheriff Chris ansen, of Montcalm county, has been a law enforcement officer for 23 years—but he has yet to fire a gun at a criminal.

Now in his third four-year term as sheriff Hansen reminded all and sundry that, although he has never used his gun in the line of duty, he still is mighty quick on the draw and a tolerably good marksman.

STOCK MARKET CONTINUES TO LEAN DOWNWARD

Trend Attributed to New Taxes Next Year for Defense Purposes.

NEW YORK — (AP) — The stock market today continued to lean moderately downward.

Losses ranged from fractions to around a point near the second hour.

Brokers attributed speculative apathy partly to threats of new taxes next year for defense purposes and to possibility the recent upswing in industry would flatten out soon.

Bonds and commodities were irregular, as were the principal foreign securities markets.

Board rooms scanned the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that announcement of first quarter prices was likely within 10 days.

Orders this month, it was added, will be well below the October total but are sufficiently close to the volume of shipments to prevent any marked shrinkage in backlogs. It was believed unfilled business would support heavy operations through January.

Steel producers, it was though, shortly may be in a position to accept a larger amount of export business.

Railroad equipment builders and farm machinery manufacturers were reported coming in with sizeable orders.

If Your Child Has A NASTY COLD

Relieve the Misery As Most Mothers Do

Rub chest, throat, and back thoroughly with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. Then spread a thick layer on the chest and cover with a warmed cloth. Right away VapoRub goes to work to relieve the misery.

VapoRub brings double relief because of its double action. It acts both as a stimulating poultice and a medicated vapor. Its poultice action penetrates the surface skin; its soothing vapors are breathed direct to irritated air passages. Try it. You'll find that often by morning most of the misery of the cold is gone.

War Maneuvers Over, Cold Is Only Enemy They Weren't Able to Put to Rout.

food was fine, but it was so doggone cold under there that scalding coffee would get cold before you had time to drink it."

But in spite of the cold, there wasn't a single case of illness or colds in the outfit, according to Capt. R. J. Nichols, in charge of the Mansfield battery.

"We just about froze," he said, "but the men took it in fine spirit. All of the 'beefing' was in fun and I think all of the men enjoyed the experience." The officers, incidentally, fared worse than the men in sleeping quarters. They drew the Junior Fair building—which was bigger and colder.

One of the most important phases of the demonstration, he said, was that the artillery and infantry had been able to coordinate their maneuvers without confusion.

The Mansfield men took part in the "defense" of Columbus against a simulated enemy force from the direction of Westerville. And of course they routed the enemy.

The morning reveille got them out at 6:30 a. m. and they were in the field ready for drill at 8. They turned in for "chow" at 12 noon and were in the field again from 1 to 4:30 p. m. Despite the cold quarters most of the men remained at the Fairground during the evening, taking part in the old army games. Rev. Grover E. Swoyer of Mansfield, chaplain for the entire 134th regiment, led the games.

REGULAR GAS PRICE

Recently, 1475 users of premium-priced gasolines were asked to test an unidentified, colorless gasoline which was really Nu-Blue Sunoco with the coloring left out. From Florida to Canada, these tests were conducted, not by us, but by independent, unbiased research authorities, and when the returns were summarized, it was found that these motorists voted 9 to 1 in favor of Nu-Blue Sunoco! 9 out of 10 proclaimed it equal or superior to the premium-priced gasolines in road performance.

To make a fair test, don't dilute Nu-Blue Sunoco with other gasoline. Let your tank run practically empty. Then put in Nu-Blue Sunoco. Compare it particularly with premium-priced gasolines. We'll rest our case on your findings.

200 Enter Dodge Plant In New Back-To-Work March

POLICE ESCORT WORKERS PAST PICKET LINES

4,000 Boo, Hiss as Employes Walk Into Plant; Parleys for Settlement Resumed.

(By United Press)

DETROIT— Approximately 200 men entered the Dodge main plant of Chrysler Corporation today unmolested but under heavy police guard in a back-to-work movement.

The men passed quickly through a picket line of an estimated four thousand men who booed and hissed but made no effort to interfere.

At Odds 53 Days.

The back-to-work movement had been sponsored by the United Automobile Workers' union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Pickets were members of the UAW affiliated with the Congress of Industrial organizations, the rival union which has been engaged in a production dispute with Chrysler for 53 days, and which Saturday officially ordered a strike in the Dodge plant.

Many of the men returning said they were foundry workers. They had assembled a half-mile from the plant in the early morning darkness. Police removed improvised weapons from some, including lead pipes and hammers.

Police, both mounted and on foot, formed almost a solid wall for blocks leading to the main gate. At the gate they kept a lane open, holding back pickets who were lined up 20 deep

The marchers arrived at the plant closely bunched. A UAW-CIO loud speaker on top of a building across the street blared out: "Let them in, boys, they can't build cars and they know it."

A few moments after the group entered about 40 came back out. They said they had been turned out because they did not have badges. Some of them said they never had been employed at Dodge.

After the men had entered the picket line began to disperse and police were ordered off duty. One union man who said he had seen all strike activity in Detroit in recent years said today's concentration of police was the largest he had witnessed.

Negotiations in the production dispute resume today, meanwhile, with a high official of the CIO scheduled to be present.

'Grapes Of Wrath' Banned By Greene County's Library

(By United Press)

XENIA—Greene county, Ohio, tasted John Steinbeck's "Grapes of Wrath" briefly, but today the "best-seller" book was not to be found on the shelves of the county library.

It's a deep secret why the controversial novel has been banned in Greene county and no other Ohio county.

"It's a private matter on our board," said Mrs. F. H. Flynn, president of the Greene county district library board, which withdrew the book from the shelves of all branches of the library.

"The book was withdrawn by a majority of one vote, about 10 days ago," the board president said. "We would prefer to make no statement." She explained that the book had been withdrawn temporarily at first so that the seven members of the board could read it before voting.

Miss Ruth A. Dennis, the librarian, said "The less publicity the better. It's too much publicity for the benefit of one book.

Although a name for the new beverage room at the Leland hotel has not been definitely decided upon, more than 50 suggestions have been submitted. The room had a new spinet piano added during the past week. Two of the names still have J. Reynolds Hodgson chuckling. Someone suggested the "Minnehaha" room and when asked what particular significance it had, the contributor said it meant the "laughing water" room. The second one was the "Oops-a-Daisy" room, which also had a slightly rowdy implication. Hodgson said the new name would be announced soon.

Woodruff is keeping the owl in a cage and he's undecided whether to turn it loose or destroy it as a protection for his chickens. The bird was caught in a trap placed on a fence post by Woodruff who suspected it might be attempting to catch a chicken.

Floyd Dent, area scout executive, made his annual pheasant hunting trip near Tiffin last Friday, in spite of what happened to him while hunting near there last year. It was just a year ago that Dent was peppered with shot while hunting near Tiffin with friends. To prove that the experience didn't scare him, he went hunting in the same field and walked over the same spot on which he was standing when shot last year. He returned with one bird—and he wasn't shot at.

'PLASTIC' PLANE SELLS AT $3,500

Aircraft Builder Says It's Made By Process Similar to Baking a Cake.

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES—O. W. Timm, aircraft builder, boasted today that he could "fill the air" with low-priced airplanes constructed in a process not unlike baking a cake. He exhibited his first, almost-completed "plastic" plane.

Almost everything but the motor was mixed up in a bowl and baked in a huge oven, he said. The first plane, however has not been tested. If the planes are successful they will be built on a mass production basis.

"Any woodworker or cabinet maker, without experience in aviation, can learn to handle this plastic material in a short time," Timm said.

The finished material resembles bakelite but is a compound of triple laminated spruce plywood treated with phenol formaldehyde. It is said to have great strength, durability and lightness. It is fireproof and water proof and flexible enough to withstand the strain of aerial stunting.

If the plastic material is damaged it may be repaired with a patch and a pot of glue. Timm's plane has very few parts.

First models will sell at around $3,500, or half the price of a metal plane of the same type.

FINAL FOUNDATION PAYMENTS END FUND WORRIES OF SCHOOLS

Sufficient funds for the operation of city and county schools for the balance of 1939 were definitely assured today with the announcement by the state board of education of the distribution of more than $93,000 in school foundation funds to Mansfield and Richland county boards of education.

Of the fourth quarterly settlement, which is expected to arrive within the next few days, Mansfield schools will receive $45,444 and Richland county schools will get a total of $47,-610, dispatches from Columbus said.

The distribution was part of nearly $11,000,000 made throughout the state to city, county and exempted village school districts.

The funds will bolster the Mansfield school operating fund which was overdrawn approximately $6,-000 last week. The board of education has requested an advance from the county on the personal tax collection to meet Dec. 1 payrolls.

Supt. W. L. Miller said today that the funds would avert any financial crisis in Mansfield and probably would allow the schools to finish the year with a small balance in its operating fund.

Ashland city schools will receive $22,189 in the distribution, Bucyrus, $13,138, and Galion, $13,132. The Ashland county schools will get $25,957; Crawford county, $24,-284; Holmes, $31,778, and Huron county, $35,974.

PARTY TO GET FIRST LOOK AT PROGRAM DEC. 7

Leaders Await Reports From Dr. Frank on Suggestions Obtained From Survey.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Republican party managers likely will get their first peek at a possible nucleus of their 1940 platform when the national committee's executive group meets here Dec. 7.

Party leaders said today that Dr. Glenn Frank, former president of the University of Wisconsin and head of a large private committee mapping a Republican program for the coming national elections, would be invited to attend.

Should Dr. Frank round up all the reports of his subcommittees in time, it was said, the latest draft of his program will come in for considerable debate. It may furnish at least the basis for many ideas to be developed for next year's platform.

The executive committee, composed of nine officers and 15 members of the national committee, probably will discuss tentatively the time and place for the party's national convention, although the decision rests with the entire national committee, which is not expected to meet until January.

To hear one Republican leader still at the capitol tell it, the party that lost to Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1932 and 1936 must, among other things:

1. Work out a farm program that will not only be as attractive in benefits to the farmers as the current administration program, but one that will improve on the present one as to "workability."

2. Evolve a labor plank on which all factions of labor can agree.

3. Formulate relief and other plans for lower income groups, including a plank that would serve as a magnet for colored voters lost to the Democratic Party in recent years.

This same party leader said of proposals from some Republicans to delay the 1940 convention for tactical reasons until after the Democrats meet:

"We can't hold off later than July 15—we usually meet in June—because we need more time to explore Democratic mistakes."

UNION ELECTS

Delano Lodge Votes Thursday on New Officers.

Approximately 400 members of Delano lodge, steelworkers' union at Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company, will go to the polls Thursday to elect officers for the coming year.

The polls will open at the lodge hall on Bowman street at 8 a. m. and balloting will continue until 9:30 p. m., Joseph Scanlon, president said.

Steel union members will name nine officers including a new director on the board of trustees. Officers will be installed at the first meeting of lodge next year.

Present officers of the union include, besides Scanlon as president, William Bell, vice president; G. C. Speelman, recording secretary; J. H. Francis, financial secretary; Gary Jacobs, treasurer; J. C. Hamilton, guide; Robert Russell, guard; Harry Boyer, journal agent, and A. M. Richard, whose term on the board of trustees expires this year.

FIGHT 2 FIRES

City Companies Report Only Slight Damage From Flames.

City firemen yesterday responded to two alarms, one outside the city. Damage was slight in both cases, they reported.

Company No. 1, was called to the home of J. H. Hamilton, Belmont Heights, Madison township, at 9:30 a. m. to extinguish a blaze which damaged two rooms. Cause of the fire was unknown.

Two hours later two companies responded to an alarm at the residence of Joseph Wagenhals, 288 West Fourth street, to put out a fire caused by a defective chimney, they reported.

U. S. Tax Agents Stumbled On Clue That Resulted In Conviction of Pendergast

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

(Editor's note: This is a continuation of Westbrook Pegler's series on the shakeup in Kansas City which led to the downfall of Tom Pendergast, political boss.)

KANSAS CITY—By an interesting coincidence the treasury intelligence unit, the men who comb the income tax returns, stumbled on the clew that was to wreck Tom Pendergast's machine and send him to prison just about the time he was receiving the greatest single chunk of graft that he collected in all his thieving career.

In March, 1936, Pendergast got $250,000 in currency for ordering his state superintendent of insurance to compromise in favor of a number of fire insurance companies and to the detriment of the policy-holders, a rate case involving the distribution of more than $9,000,000 in sequestered premiums.

Within a month the income tax men, inquiring about an item in the accounts of a Chicago law firm and with no interest whatever in Pendergast's affairs, picked up a lead that ruined him.

Up to this time the government's only interest in Pendergast, apart from the political and personal interest of the administration in a very effective producer, was that concerning the vote frauds in Kansas City.

Maurice Milligan, the district attorney, was nagging away at Pendergast's gang, but the boys were unconcerned, because they had been assured that these offenses were not the business of the federal government and that any convictions, therefore, would surely be reversed. In the state courts they could pack the juries, so they felt safe.

But as Milligan crowded them around, obtaining convictions that did stick, the treasury men were quietly tracing payments of big money and reconstructing the conspiracy by which Pendergast robbed hundreds of thousands of little people in Missouri—the type of people who voted his way and kept him in luxury—of small sums, amounting in all to millions of dollars.

The income tax indictment was the one on which he was finally sent to prison, and although it is possible that he would have been nailed in the vote frauds, a guilty connection with that phase of his criminal life would have been very hard to prove. Moreover, the people of Kansas City were not very angry about the vote frauds.

The insurance deal, however, showed them what a black-hearted, greedy old rascal he was by contrast with his popular reputation for openhanded generosity and kindness to the street-car type of citizen.

He not only took, all told, $315,-000 of their money in bribes from the insurance companies as his share of their millions, but he initiated a crime that ruined a subordinate politician named Robert Emmett O'Malley, the insurance superintendent. O'Malley got only one year in prison, plus the disgrace and all, so he deserves no sympathy, but the operation goes to show that Pendergast had no thought of anybody but himself.

He was horse-crazy and money-crazy, he robbed his own cops and ward and precinct workers of their paltry little pay, drove one poor, servile slave to suicide, dragged others to prison cuffed to his own wrists, and when cornered turned yellow in court with a whine for mercy on the ground that he was sick and a victim of an irresistible passion for betting on the races.

At that, Judge Merrill E. Otis gave him only 15 months in Leavenworth, notwithstanding Milligan's statement that he was prepared to prove other crimes, but would waive prosecution in the belief that the judge would give consideration to these other offenses. Pendergast pleaded guilty, to be sure, but only because he was nailed and knew it.

And he didn't plead guilty until he had done all he could to obstruct the investigation, and he is now in the same prison with men and boys who got more time for possessing a few doped cigarets or driving a stolen car across a state line.

Marijuana cigarets are very bad. They agitate the passions of high school boys and girls and drive Mexicans and colored men in the slums to acts of impurity, but Pendergast's whole career, culminating in the crimes which Milligan was prepared to prove, was a serious attack on popular confidence in the American system of government.

While little people were paying their $6.40 or $22.60 to the internal revenue as income tax, he was holding out a tax of $432,170, most of it due on money stolen from the little people, and raising their taxes, boosting their water bills and handing them traffic tickets as the penalty for voting against him.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The first breath of what passes for autumn weather in this remote territory brings on again the town's annual attack of Academy Award blues and dithers.

The big banquet honoring the selections comes off in the spring, but the deadline for "candidates" is not far away. The academy awards "year" ranges from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31, and the films that have not been shown in this area during that period are out in the cold for the spring voting.

Another few weeks, during which the major contender yet unreleased but set this side of the deadline is "Gone With the Wind," will tell the tale.

This offering, regardless of its critical and popular reception, will surely weigh heavily in the final verdict: First, because it cost about $4,000,000, and there's no balloteer in town who'll sneeze at that dough. Second, because it'll be freshest, with all its ballyhoo, in the memory of the voters—the workers in the film industry.

Awards for "bests" in a field of competition so varied and many-faceted as the movies are rather silly to begin with. To determine the "best performance" angle, for instance, it would be necessary to have the contenders each play the same role or a similar role. If Charles Laughton is so good, say, as "The Beachcomer," let's see what he'd do in James Stewart's spot as "Mr. Smith," and vice versa. Every actor, I mean, is limited by his type and role—although more frequently it happens that the role is limited by the actor.

For all that, there's a likely list of candidates for top honors in both actor and actress divisions.

The men sure to rate heavy consideration include Stewart, for "Mr. Smith," Laurence Olivier for "Wuthering Heights," Robert Donat for "Goodbye Mr. Chips," Spencer Tracy ("Stanley and Livingstone") is never to be overlooked, nor is James Cagney ("The Roaring Twenties" and "Each Dawn I Die"), nor is Henry Fonda (for "Young Mr. Lincoln"). Inevitably, Clark Gable will come up for "Gone"—and stand a good chance. And Muni is always with us.

The ladies of the town are easier to list, as fewer have had roles of a caliber to merit unusual attention. Including Vivien Leigh of "Gone" as a certain contender, the field otherwise belongs practically to Bette Davis, who has three notches in her Oscar-shooting rifle—"Dark Victory," "Juarez," "The Old Maid." There is Anna Neagle (an 18-carat job in "Nurse Edith Cavell") and there's Garbo, a topper for "Ninotchka." As for the rest, I can't see one other performance, however successful, which represents anything more than competent work, pleasant personality, and the ability to take good direction.

The other most-limelighted award is the director's. Here the old-timers, with one exception, have the field to themselves. The exception is young Garson Kanin, who put up "The Great Man Votes" and "Bachelor Mother."

The old-timers, few of them st[illegible]ers to award nominations, a[illegible]ank Capra for "Mr. Smith," Victor Fleming for "Gone," Ernst Lubitsch on "Ninotchka," Leo McCarey on "Love Affair," Michael Curtiz for "Elizabeth and Essex" and others, Edmund Goulding for "We Are Not Alone" and "Dark Victory," John Ford for "Stagecoach" and "Drums Along the Mohawk," and William Wyler for "Wuthering Heights."

Probable winners (but I haven't seen "Gone" yet): Stewart, Davis, Capra.

SYNOPSIS

THE CHARACTERS:

FABIENNE SEYMOUR, rich, young and beautiful.

NICKY BARTLETT, wealthy and in love with Fabienne.

ELLEN CHAPMAN, young and and capable mistress of Willoughbly house.

YESTERDAY: After her mother sails for Europe, Fabienne moves to a hotel and begins her work at Willoughby house. Ellen Chapman takes an interest in her, invites her to supper.

CHAPTER SIX

Fabienne Seymour counted her friends by the score. There were the girls who'd gone to Brearly with her, and the girls who came out the same time she did. And there was the hunting crowd from Maryland and all the people she'd met at the various places where she'd been holidaying during the last five years—Paris and St. Moritz, San Francisco, Banff, Palmer Beach and, of course, the tremendous number who made up that small world of young New York society. And yet, she thought as she waited for a traffic light to change on Fifth avenue at one o'clock in the morning, she never had been able to talk to one of them for more than the time it took to eat luncheon.

And here she was coming home from Ellen Chapman's after talking for five hours and thinking that the evening was still young.

Well, Ellen was interesting. Talking to her was like looking into a book and reading about characters she had never met. Goodness knows, Ellen would never fit into Fabienne's set, or sets.

To begin with, she didn't look like anything. She had ordinary dark hair, ordinary dark eyes, good enough features and a rather sweet grave expression, but she threw them away, in Fabienne's opinion. If she had a good hair dresser and used a little more makeup—

The traffic light changed and Fabienne put her car in gear. It started with a jerk and had the effect of temporarily switching its driver's thoughts.

But later, after she had given the keys to the doorman at her hotel and told him to have the car taken away and returned at eight, her thoughts returned to the girl she had left.

It had been difficult to get Ellen to tell her her story, and her answers had been simply given; but Fabienne had formed a picture. Graduated from college at twenty-two, Ellen had gone into Henderson house, as Willoughby house had been known. She had been there fore five years—yet she looked no older than Fabienne—and during that time she had become director with the death of Mrs. Jennings, its original organizer. Apparently since then, there had been nothing else in her life.

Suddenly Fabienne remembered the way the girl's face had looked, flushed and pretty and alive, when she came back from the telephone.

'Bill!" Fabienne said to herself. "I must find out about Bill." All the girls she knew talked about their beaux. She'd get Ellen to.

Ellen was not an easy person to get to know. She was friendly and charming. She sincerely liked Fabienne and told her that she thought she had built up a hard protective shell against the real person she was. Fabienne laughed that off. She was surprised to find that Ellen was such an idealist.

Fabienne had no illusions about herself. She knew that she was doing good work at the settlement house as the first month slipped into the second, and the second into the third. But she knew it was good only because she would not do anything badly. Not because she liked the work. It was just as tiresome to her as she progressed from one job to another as it had been that first week.

The one pleasure she did get out of it was her friendship with Ellen. Ellen intrigued her the way that a man who did not fall at her feet would intrigue her. Ellen apparently wanted nothing of her, liked her but had no envy of her, paid her no tribute except in her work, and never offered any return confidence for the confidences that Fabienne found herself giving her. Funny girl, Ellen.

She asked Fabienne for tea one Sunday afternoon. Tea with just one other girl would have been an idea too impossible for Fabienne to consider three months ago. But that November afternoon the idea was most appealing.

She said, "I could eat plates of toast, but don't let me. I'm going to a buffet supper at six."

"May I ride up with you, Fabienne I'm going to meet Bill. He's working until eight and then we're meeting at Carnegie hall."

Ellen wore an evening dress that looked as if she had bought it at one of the neighborhood rummage sales. Fabienne couldn't bear it. She said, "Ellen, I don't know what your Bill is like, but unless he is blind, you can't wear that. Get me a needle and let me do something about fitting it."

It was much better when Fabienne got through with it. In fact, it was surprisingly chic. It was made of flame colored taffeta that brought out the dusky lights in Ellen hair. Fabienne frowned over the hair until Ellen sighed and said, "All right, see what you can do with it."

It was shoulder length and beautifully easy to wave. Fabienne toyed with it as if Ellen were a doll. "There," she said, at last, "Give Bill an eyeful of that . . . and I'll tell you what I'll do: We'll stop at my hotel and I'll lend you my little sable wrap."

Ellen shook her head. She said, 'That's sweet of you, but it would be wasted on Bill. He wouldn't appreciate borrowed finery."

"Fiddlesticks! What kind of a person is he Doesn't he want his best girl to look smart?"

Ellen busied herself with a bracelet clasp. "I never asked him," she said. "Besides, he's a very busy young man."

"Can't he think of anything better to do than to take you to hear choral singers when you look like you do now? Get him to take you dancing."

"Bill's interested in these singers. He earns extra money singing in a church choir himself."

"Oh," Fabienne said. She could picture Bill, an earnest young man with hair that fell untidy over his forehead. He'd undoubtedly have a prominent Adam's apple above the slipping tie that went with his dinner jacket. No, Bill wouldn't appreciate her sable wrap.

"Anyway, choir singer or not, I bet he tells you you're awfully pretty tonight."

"You don't know Bill," Ellen said.

Fabienne was rather glad that Ellen hadn't borrowed her coat. Ken Hemingway rang her up to say that they were dressing for the Hunters' party. "We're going to the horse show after supper. Got to look pretty for the newspaper photographers, honey," Ken said.

'I'm not a socialite any more, Ken. I'm a hard-working social worker. Does it matter what I wear?"

"I don't know. Will you want white or plain purple orchids?"

"White and six of them, please," she said laughing.

So he sent her six white orchids and she was wearing them on her sable collar and laughing up into his face when the photographer from the tabloid The Daily Journal snapped her picture.

"I'm not a socialite," she told him.

"She's a social service worker, boy," Ken added. "The main prop of Willoughby house."

The picture appeared on the back cover of the tabloid the next day. Under it was the legend: DEBUTANTE DESERTS SOCIAL WORLD FOR SETTLEMENT HOUSE.

Fabienne Seymour, daughter of the Comtesse de Ligne and the late Carl Seymour of the Maryland hunting Seymours, defies convention by becoming one of the directors of Willoughby house. It was this settlement house that received part of the large legacy left to charity by the late Elihu Willoughby at the expense of his heirs, of which Fabienne is one.

Fabienne saw the paper the next day. "I'm so sorry," she told Ellen. "I didn't tell them I was a director."

"It won't do any harm," Ellen said.

Ellen didn't think anyone would see it when she dropped it in the waste basket. One of the little Tomassino boys, who had given Fabienne his nine-year-old heart, cut it out of the paper and showed it to everyone who came into his crippled little world.

(To Be Continued.)

"There," said Fabienne at last, "give Bill an eyeful of that."

Air Enthusiasts Study Science Of Flying In Storeroom Class

Once a week a group of Mansfield aviation enthusiasts meet in a downtown storeroom to pursue the science of flying.

For the past four weeks the group has been meeting in a rear room at the Isaly store on Park avenue west where they have been studying Civil Aeronautic regulations.

James R. "Bud" Harrington, airport manager, and instructor of the class said today that with increased membership in the class that new studies would be started this week.

At a meeting tonight Harrington will open the class to all persons interested in aviation with a three-month course in meteorology and navigation.

"The course is open without charge to anyone interested in flying," Harrington said, explaining that it was in the interests of aviation that he was conducting the weekly classes.

The lessons will be taken from government textbooks.

The weekly sessions will consist of a two-hour discussion on the subjects with study and review of the lesson. At the end of the instruction period he plans to hold an examination for the group.

Harrington, who holds four government flying licenses and has flown more than 2,800 hours in the past 13 years is considered an aviation authority in the Mansfield district.

He operates a flying service at the Municipal airport.

SAYS CHILDREN NEED DISCIPLINE

Boston Professor Thinks Their Parents Lagging In Family Duties.

(By International News Service)

BOSTON—Most children today do not get enough disciplining, according to Professor Wayland Vaughan, Boston university, author and psychologist.

In a number of cases, he said, children in modern homes use the family car too frequently and spend too much of the family income.

Strict disciplining, however, often tends to make a rebel of a child, while the same treatment used on another child would cause him to become a Caspar Milquetoast type, the professor said.

While admitting that too much independence is likely to lead the child to defiance of the authority of the parents, Professor Vaughan said, "Of course, self-expression is very important for a child's mental growth.

"Emotions and intelligence both need expansion by practice. But it is just as important for Johnnie to be taught self-discipline, because eventually he is going to be a member of human groups, where his own individual impulses must be subordinated to the whole."

TAX AUDIT DUE

Accountants' Report on Black Estate Ready This Week.

A preliminary report of an audit of the personal estate of the late Frank B. Black from 1926 to 1932, ordered in a personal tax suit involving the estate, is expected to be ready this week, according to County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe.

The audit, which is being made by Ernst and Ernst, Cleveland, will be used to determine whether there are personal taxes due on the estate for that period, as charged by Michael Hallabrin, Mansfield, in a taxpayer's suit.

Wolfe said it probably will take some time to study the report and make assessments, if it is found that there are unpaid taxes due.

Hallabrin, who filed the action against Wolfe, contended that certain taxes were not paid on the property because of an exemption which was later ruled unconstitutional.

CUNNINGHAM, Mass.—(INS)—Another New England landmark soon bows to progress.

$7,500 Budget For Office of County School Head OK'd

A budget calling for $7,500 for the operation of the office of county superintendent of schools in 1940 has been approved by the Richland county board of education.

The amount represents a $250 increase over the 1939 operating budget. The gain includes a $200 service fund set up by the board to take care of traveling and incidental expenses for the county board. Slight increases in other funds make up the other $50 boost.

The county schools budget provides salaries for the superintendent, his secretary, the county attendance officer, office supplies for the superintendent and county board traveling expenses.

Irwin Hunter of Bloominggrove township, elected to the county board on Nov. 7, sat in on yesterday's board session. The first northern Richland county representative on the board for several years, Hunter will take office the third Saturday in January. He will replace J. W. Snook of Mifflin township.

Tells How Great He Feels Since Vendol Relieved Him

Well Known Farmer Says Famous Medicine Relieved Gas in Stomach, Cramps, Nervous Indigestion, Acid Risings, and Other Troubles Associated with Constipation. Wants Other Sufferers to Know About It.

The mighty power of Vendol! When has there been a medicine sold in this city ever to score so many victories over stubborn cases? Thousands who have found their appetites gone, which weakened and wasted their bodies, others who suffered the tortures of sour stomach, distress from gas and bloating, their back and legs full of aches and pains, wearied and tired out from light, broken sleep, all because of constipation and faulty elimination, have found happy relief and comfort in this great Root, Herb, and Alkaline preparation. Vendol has achieved hundreds of such triumphs in this city and nearby towns, and as a striking example of one of them, the experience of Mr. Bryan F. Boals, prosperous farmer residing on Route 2, Mansfield, is given below:

"Vendol did for me in a short time what other medicines I tried failed to do, so I'm glad to recommend it to others suffering from the same cause," says Mr. Boals. "I was constipated every day which made me lose my appetite, but what light meals I did eat soured in my stomach, causing gas and indigestion so bad that food often came right back up and left a sour, burning, sickening taste in my mouth for hours.

"This constipated condition made me so nervous that my rest was broken and I got up in the mornings feeling tired and jaded. I tired easily and before the day's work was finished I was almost exhausted.

"I was advised to try Vendol and a few bottles along with the little Vendol laxative tablets have made me feel like a new person. This medicine gave the most satisfying relief from constipation; then all my other troubles just gradually disappeared. Appetite is good, pains are gone, my sleep is restful, and my work seems easy. I am glad to tell about this splendid medicine to lead others to try it."

Vendol has helped many Mansfield people in the same way. Call on the Vendol Man at Central Drug Store, Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., and let him tell you all about this great Root, Herb, and Alkaline medicine. Vendol is sold by leading druggists everywhere.—Adv.

Payments are calculated at Household's rates of 2% per month on loans up to $200 and 6% per year on balances above $200 up to $400. These rates are less than the maximum prescribed by the Small Loan Law.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO MONDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1939.

"Easy" reaches its most expansive interpretation when applied to monthly payments.

According to a relativitist, "time is eating up space"—and anyhow, overtime is eating up parking space.

Seems odd to be constantly aiming toward the "1929 peak" of industrial production—1939 should be able to make a peak of its own.

Trade-Restraint by Labor

THE SHERMAN LAW has usually been interpreted as applicable to business rather than labor. Five labor practices in the building industry, however, are alleged by Assistant Attorney General Arnold to be in restraint of trade. They are as follows:

First, "unreasonable restraints designed to prevent the use of cheaper material, improved equipment or more efficient methods," for example, preventing the installation of factory-glazed windows or factory-painted kitchen cabinets.

Second, "unreasonable restraints designed to compel the hiring of useless and unnecessary labor," such as requiring that on every truck entering a city there must be a member of the local teamsters' union in addition to the regular driver.

Third, "unreasonable restraints designed to enforce systems of graft and extortion," as practised by some racketeers masquerading as labor leaders.

Fourth, "unreasonable restraints designed to enforce illegally fixed prices," as in a Chicago milk case where a labor union was accused of joining with producers and distributors to maintain unlawful prices.

Fifth, "unreasonable restraints designed to destroy an established and legitimate system of collective bargaining," whether undertaken by an employer or a union or a combination of the two.

Such practices are known to prevail in various cities. Not only are they unfair to the public but they are doubtless against the interest of labor itself. Their abandonment should result in cheaper homes, more work and larger incomes in the trades concerned.

Inherited Criminal Tendencies

WHY the murder rate in the United States is so much larger than that in England is a much-discussed subject, the puzzle being even greater when it is considered that London policemen carry no guns

One point to be kept in mind is that England is populated largely by one nationality and that, over many decades that country eliminated her criminal strains by executing offenders, thus stopping continued propagation of criminally-inclined offspring, as is still being tolerated in the United States.

Scientific research has done much in disclosing the inheritance of criminal tendencies, it having been as early as 1871 that Lombroso made a discovery along this line which has influenced many later criminologists in their studies and conclusions.

It was Lombroso who found in the cranium of the notorious bandit, Villella, an occipital depression usually found in the anthropoid apes in place of the occipital crest found in man It was on this finding that much of what is now known as criminal anthropology and biology is based.

When there is better understanding, and more general acceptance of the fact that feeblemindedness, syphilitic blemishes and criminal tendencies pass from parent to child through successive generations, there will be more widespread public interest in taking action to correct conditions which make this possible

Week of Thankfulness

ALTHOUGH Minnesota, as a state, decided on next Thursday for its Thanksgiving observance, Minneapolis is making it an eight-day affair, by proclamation of Mayor Leach, who decided the people of that city had so much for which to be thankful that they couldn't crowd it all into one day. Civic observance started at 12 01 a. m. last Thursday and will continue until 11:59 p. m next Thursday.

As for the Thanksgiving feast, that was up to individual families. "Let your conscience be your guide" said the broad-minded mayor.

It might have been a good thing if the Minneapolis idea had been widely and seriously followed. A whole week of thanksgiving thoughtfulness would not be too much for Americans who have occasion to be thankful every day in the year

Freedom For East Indians

IT IS INCREDIBLE how much power is wielded by a frail, little old man in a breech-clout. Mohandas K. Gandhi, leader of the Nationalist party in India, controls eleven provincial governments and about 200,000,000 people. He and his followers demand "comp'ete freedom" and say they will not participate in the war against Germany unless it is given them.

The British government insists on deferring action until the war is over. Thus it hopes to wear down the "Mahatma" and his followers. Eventually, no doubt John Bull will loosen the reins in India as he has done in Canada, South Africa and elsewhere. But he doesn't want to be hurried.

Whether Britain yields to Gandhi's demands probably depends on how long the European war lasts. If the Nazis can hold out long enough the Indians will get what they want.

Destructive Man

ANIMALS kill their enmies among other species, and fight for their mates, but none of them are so destructive as man, observes Dr Francis H Herrick, biologist of Western Reserve university The human species is the only one that burns and destroys and kills its own kind

But that isn't the whole story. He might have pointed out that man is not only the most destructive creature, but the most constructive. Look at all our cities, bridges, churches and so on.

The truth seems to be that man is really everything, large and small, good and bad—but with a surplus of good and a capacity for improvement.

For the record: The marriage certificate was lost In applying for a duplicate the Indiana girl remembered that the wedding was "sometime in August" and that the man's first name was Eddie

The man who "wants but little here below" usually gets it.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The election of young Al Smith, jr, to the city council added a sentimental interest to the afterglow of the recent elections The son of the Happy Warrior, as the Old Man has been known for 20 years or more, steps into his pappy's shoes and if he ever fits them he will be doing a good job

The thing about the Old Man himself is this—friends and foes alike concede him one thing, nobody ever accused Al Smith of anything that wasn't strictly on the level—and this in a day when Tammany rose and fell with the regularity of the tide, and when political corruption was everywhere apparent—is the best testimony that any man in public life can have

AS FOR Young Al—he never had to work in a Fulton street fish factory He never had to get out and scrap for his ham and eggs, as his Old Man did But he's been brought up in a good school He's got two eyes and two hands

And, for all any of us know, this election that barely gave him a seat in the council may be the first step on a really significant career Things like that do happen The Old Warrior said before the election that here was one campaign he wanted the name of Smith to dominate more than any he could remember—and Al can remember them by the dozens Maybe it's he instead of the Kid, who is deserving of congratulations.

ONE of the really live wires around New York is Walter O Keefe who used to room with Knute Rockne when he went to Notre Dame and who now is some shucks in the radio field

Old Rock always used to drop by Barney Gallant's the Stork club of its day, to chat with O Keefe when he was in town

One night on one of his football trips Rock came around for a chat with O'Keefe and found him sitting with Heywood Broun

"I'd like to meet him" Broun said when the waiter told O'Keefe that the famous Bald Eagle of South Bend was in the club

"Why sure" said O'Keefe, and the introduction was made

But when Broun's name was mentioned, Rockne seized the writer's hand and said "Why, Mr Broun I'm proud to know you I read your column every day I haven't missed it in years"

Broun blinked for his column hadn't appeared in three months That was after the Old New York World had folded

"Thank you Mr Rockne," Broun said, "I sure like the way you coach that Yale basketball team too"

That was when O Keefe blinked He hasn't figured out yet just who was kidding who

Timely Editorial

Mickey's $5,000 a Week.

If Hollywood has not adjusted Mickey Rooney's income upward to around $5,000 a week it will be hard to feel that that energetic young man has been badly used

There are two schools of thought about Mickey with apparently no middle ground between There is a very large public, including most of the young who would go through fire and flood to see a Rooney film, and to this group he is a beau ideal embodying every attribute of adolescent charm

There is another and on the whole older public which finds in the same lad all the traits and qualities which make the American brat completely insufferable Logically the former is the larger of these bodies of sentiment At any rate it attends Mickey's successive efforts in prodigious numbers, and has lifted him to a top spot among box office attractions And Hollywood only does the honest thing in cutting him in on the take.—Detroit News.

FIRST FRUITS OF THE REORGANIZATION

Amateur Spy-Hunters Rejected

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

J EDGAR HOOVER, head of the justice departments federal bureau of investigation (the FBI) is a pretty good detective and one of the best signs of it is that he prefers to do his own detecting. He expresses himself very coldly toward the idea of having an army of amateurs engage in the job of spy hunting, more or less for the unadulterated fun of it.

J. Edgar Hoover

Since the European war was started various organizations of vigilantes, here and there throughout the country, are being framed up to hunt down un-American agitators extra-officially.

J Edgar seems altogether out of sympathy with this movement.

His theory evidently is that his FBI, the army and navy intelligence divisions, the treasury department's secret service and post-office investigators can do all the probing that's necessary, without a swarm of irresponsible volunteers to help them

Not that these agencies don't want tips from reliable sources but J. Edgar isn't favorable to letting the independents run rampant The governmental agencies have some sense, J Edgar clearly isn't so sure of the volunteer gang.

No Gestapo Here.

The suggestion's been made that the FBI and the army and navy and the treasury and postoffice outfits might advantageously be consolidated The notion isn't popular, however, it would hint too much at a central GESTAPO or OGPU. It probably wouldn't work well, anyway, it would be too interdepartmental In any event, the yowlings of a lot of non-professional sleuths would handicap, not aid it The "federals" are picked and trained, not so the butt-in-skys

There's a lot of inter-belligerent propaganda already. A good deal of it's unavoidable.

We get, from London, Paris, Berlin Rome, Moscow, Helsingfors and elsewhere, oodles of so-called news that we've no means of verifying Nor would it be desirable to discriminate The conflicting stories are part of the conflict We need to know what, respectively, they allege That's part of the situation

But the Germans have been deluging the United States with little pamphlets, addressed, under international postage stamps, to individuals—to doctors, to lawyers, to newspapermen, to all sorts of groups who can be classified in telephone directories. I've had their appeals. Possibly they run into millions.

The postoffice department may have something to say about this

It's propaganda all right, but is it anything we can shut off legitimately? I wouldn't think so

Spies? Sure!

The other day there appeared a volume known as "Jane's Fighting Ships"

It's an annual publication containing all sorts of information concerning the world's navies Our own navy men tell me that it's pretty accurate They add that plenty of so-called spies get all their dope out of this and similar books, and peddle it to govern ments that are suckers enough to believe that it's confidential

Yet there isn't a navy department on earth that hasn't an up-to-date copy of "Jane's Fighting Ships" immediately available. A would-be spy doesn't even have to buy one. It's to be had by asking for it at any well-stocked public library

Of course a genuine spy is highly objectable. At least he's a nuisance and maybe he's dangerous He's decidedly the latter if part of his job is to do actual damage—the sabotage game.

Obtaining false passports also is downright criminal, involving perjury

Even propagandists, if paid by foreign interests, though perhaps their work may not be particularly mischievous, are supposed to register with the state department, under heavy penalties

But the net conclusion is that our official investigators consider themselves quite capable of handling the situation. Swarms of amateurs trailing possibly perfectly harmless folk in every direction, are rated as likely to become almost as much of a pest as the propagandist and spies are.

Health and Diet

Adolescence Is Hazardous Period.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

SHAKESPEARE was wrong about the ages of man. There are only four—infancy, to the end of the third year, childhood, from the third to about the twelfth year adolescence, from about the twelfth to the eighteenth year, and adult maturity from then on Adolescence is the threshold to adult life, as infancy is the threshold or preparation period for childhood. Adolescence is quite as hazardous and difficult a period as is infancy, and should command almost as much guidance as the earlier period.

The physical changes in adolescence are complicated by mental and emotional changes. The most striking physical changes are sudden accelerations in the development of height and weight. This follows after the comparatively long period of practically unchanging development in childhood

Every organ and tissue in the body is altered in childhood. The head grows mostly in the facial region The cranium has attained nine-tenths of its mature size at six The trunk grows rapidly during the early half of adolescence, this acceleration occurring two years earlier in girls than in boys

Growth of Limbs.

Most of the adolescence gain in height is due to the growth of the lower limbs Both arms and legs lengthen near the cartilaginous ends of the bones which unite firmly with the shaft of the bone late in adolescence. At maturity the legs are about five times as long as at birth The circumferences of the forearm, upper arm, calf and thigh increase largely through muscular growth. The growth of the pelvis differs according to sex, the girls pelvis changing considerably at this period

The adolescent heart nearly doubles in size to fulfil the circulatory requirements of the enlarging body Glandular development is very marked in adolescence The thyroid and pituitary glands are intensely activated. This results in development of the reproductive functions

Diet Essentials.

All these changes require certain adjustments.

The essentials of the adolescent's daily diet are given as follows:

Viscera, meat fowl, fish, egs, or cheese one serving.

Milk: as a beverage—one pint; prepared in dishes one pint.

Vegetables leafy two large servings. root two large servings

Fruit: raw two servings. cooked —two servings.

Cereals: whole-grain—one large serving.

Additional foods optional.

Personal hygiene in regard to regularity of meals, exercise to enhance the efficiency of bodily function, personal cleanliness and attention to sex hygiene particularly on the part of girls, are all matters that can be suggested and guided by the parents

The most common physical problems of adolescence which require adjustment are posture, anemia, acne and the growth of the thyroid gland.

Bothersome Budget

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

HE IS an eager, rosy nine-year-old with snappy dark eyes and a lovable grin. He adores his father.

"Dad went to sleep over the Christmas catalog," he told me. "Gee he looked funny! He was sitting there, pigeon-toed, in the big armchair with a pencil in his hand and the book on his knees, open at the bikes. He almost snored and his head nodded so hard that we all just hollered and laughed—then he woke up"

"And then he sent you children to bed right away," I guessed.

"Yeah, he did...but he was lookin' at bicycles. I saw that. He hasn't forgot what I want most for Christmas."

No, he wouldn't forget I know the man His two girls and his boy are his first concern. I could read into the homely little scene more than the youngster knew.

That farmer raises hogs. On his fifty acres of rolling land he aims to fatten two droves of hogs a year For the past three years he has butchered twice a week during most of the winter, and sold the meat from door to door in town He has done well. But butchering and peddling the meat is not easy work, and he is not so young as he used to be. His farm will soon be paid for, but this fall he will need all the funds he can command to meet a payment. And yesterday the price of hogs went down.

I have often seen him, after carrying two big pails of mash, stand beside his hoggen, his old slouched felt hat pushed back from his weathered face and a tired droop to his overall-clad figure Sometimes he stood there a half hour watching his animals until they had cleaned up their trough.

Last night, I suspect, he had a more worried look as he finished his task He ate his supper silently, and took his usual place beside the lamp with the evening paper Presently he felt for a pencil in his pocket and opened the catalog, which lay on the stand, to support his paper while he began figuring upon an old envelope

He was very tired. The day in the corn field had been strenuous Sleep overtook him before he had made his budget balance —he sat and slept with the toes of his gray and white work socks turned in and his graying head propped upon one knotty hand.

To his little boy he was a ludicrous sight . . . not so much provoking to some of the rest of us, who understand how necessary it is that Santa Claus keep faith with little boys, even when there is a drop in the price of hogs.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Two weeks ago when Germany seemed on the verge of invading Holland and Belgium, President and Mrs. Roosevelt were ready to give sanctuary at Hyde Park to the three little children of the widower Belgian King Leopold III.

The offer was made in a personal message from the president. Furthermore, it still stands—if the Nazi high command finally decides to hurl its armies through the low countries.

Intelligence reports are to the effect that the Germans were all set to strike between Nov. 12 and 15, but that serious differences within the general staff postponed the plan. Whether it has been permanently abandoned is not known, but most military authorities here doubt it. They still expect the Germans to attack, and through Belgium and Holland.

If the two little Belgian princesses and their young brother, the heir to the throne, do come to this country, they will be brought over secretly in a specially convoyed ship

New Ship Plan.

IT'S a closely guarded secret, but the United States lines has a new plan to keep it in the trans-Atlantic shipping business, despite the neutrality act

The company has "informally" sounded out the Maritime commission on a proposition to charter Norwegian ships for the routes over which it previously operated the nine freighters for which permission to transfer to the Panamanian flag was refused

There is nothing in the law barring such a deal and one line, American Diamond, already has leased to a Norwegian company eight ships for routes not affected by the neutrality act Then Diamond in turn, took over Norwegian vessels for use on trans-Atlantic routes American Diamond did not have to obtain commission approval for this because it receives no government subsidies

United States lines, however, is under subsidy and has to get an official okay Fate of its new plan, like the Panamanian transfer depends on major U S policy And this will be decided by the president himself

Desperate Efforts.

DESPERATE behind-the-scenes efforts are being made by the Maritime commission and by shipping companies to find means of putting the laid-up 88 vessels back into operation

Lykes Brothers of New Orleans with 24 ships are opening a new route through the canal to the west coast of South America The South Atlantic Steamship company, of Savannah, Ga, with six ships is also looking over the Latin American field

Privately, both the government and the companies are counting strongly on the mounting shipping losses of the allies and European neutrals to solve the problem If the Europeans continue to lose ships they will have to abandon various trade routes particularly in the western hemisphere This will be the chance for American lines to step in and take over with their neutrality-docked vessels

This process already is under way The British Furness line withdrew its two ships from the Bermuda service and United States lines promptly stepped in with its President Roosevelt To aid this activity, the Maritime commission is conducting a world-wide survey of all ship routes.

* * *

Indian Warriors.

IF the United States should get involved in war, it can count on the Indians

Visiting a Pueblo village in Colorado recently, Indian Commissioner John Collier noticed that the tribal chieftains seemed to have something on their minds After a long huddle one of them stepped forward and said, "Our people want to know if country get into war?"

"I hope not," replied Collier "The president and the people are against war and we are adhering to a strict neutrality policy"

"But," persisted the spokesman, "if war come will Indians be drafted"

"If there should be a draft, Indians doubtless will be subject to it the same as all other Americans As you know, the act of 1924 made you citizens and you share the responsibilities of citizens"

"Ugh," grunted the chief. "Indians fight, but not be drafted. Don't like draft, enlist like last war."

Note—Though exempt from service in 1917, 12,000 Indians enlisted and many of them won decorations for bravery under fire. They were particularly effective as combat messengers.

War on Trade.

THE European war may soon hit the U. S. A a trade blow that will make the laying up of the 88 trans-Atlantic merchant vessels seem mild in comparison.

Confidential word has been received from London that the allies will tighten their blockade of Germany and retaliate against ruthless sea warfare restricting U S. exports to certain European neutrals

Exactly what the allies have up their sleeve is not yet certain, but there is reason to believe they will set up a quota system on U S. exports to Norway, Sweden, and possibly Holland

These three countries are suspected of being funnels through which Germany is obtaining vitally needed war materials Since the start of the war they have purchased more than $52,000,000 worth of American cotton, foods, aircraft and petroleum products

The finger of allied suspicion is pointed chiefly at Sweden. Normally a small customer of the U. S., Swedish orders have jumped 200 per cent since August.

For the last three months her imports were $5,659,000 in August, $8,052,000 in September, and $15,795,000 in October. Incomplete figures for November indicate they will run well over $20,000,000. The allies are convinced that most of these purchases are of German origin.

If the allies do clamp down on the trade of the three neutrals, it will be nothing new. During the World war, they imposed quota limits on Dutch imports when that country was functioning as Germany's chief foreign source of supply
